Job picture grim despite quirk

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's grim unemployment picture was virtually unchanged in June, although a statistical quirk showed a big drop in the unemployment rate, the Labor Department said today.

The jobless rate fell to 8.6 per cent in June, down from 9.2 per cent in May, the figures showed. But a Labor Department analyst said the true jobless rate probably was nearer 8.9 per cent in both months.

"There was very little change between May and June," he said.

The Labor Department said there was a two-tenths of one per cent decrease in unemployment among heads of households. The department characterized this as "little changed" from May.

The department also reported that wholesale prices in June decreased one-tenth of one per cent, largely because of a decline in prices of good and farm products.

Virtually all of the decline in the June unemployment rate was attributed to a statistical quirk that showed more young people entering the labor force in June than actually were there.

Since most of the young people only enter the work force when they actually find jobs, the statistics resulted in showing an over-all decline in the level of unemployment.

Julius Shiskin, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, said the nation wouldn't know whether there was a real improvement of unemployment "until we see the July figures."

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, has said that because of the statistical quirk a decline from 9.2 per cent in May to 8.6 per cent in June would mean an unchanged situation.

But the June unemployment figures appeared to show some improvement in the jobless rate for heads of households, which was down to 6.1 per cent from May's total of 6.3 per cent.

Unemployment for married men was 5.7 per cent in June, down from 5.8 per cent in May. The jobless rate for both household heads and married men had doubled over the past year, the Labor Department said.

The decline in wholesale prices, after adjustment for seasonal factors, reverted to the trend established with a four-month decline from December through March. Wholesale prices had registered a two-month increase after that, with May's rise amounting to four-tenths of one per cent. The June drop came despite increases in the price of fuel.

Total employment in the economy in June was listed at 84.4 million, unchanged from May, while seasonally adjusted unemployment was 7.9 million, down from 8.5 million in May.

The Labor Department said the sizeable decline in unemployment between May and June had been anticipated "as a result of a limitation in the seasonal adjustment procedure."

It said that because of the adjustment procedure, it is difficult to interpret changes in unemployment among groups which typically experience sizeable labor force inflows in June.

It said the seasonal adjustments, which are designed to smooth over cyclical changes in employment patterns during the year, assumes that the number of young seekers who enter the labor market between May and June is proportional to the level of unemployment.

However, the department said that when the unemployment rate is as high as it has been in 1975, the figures automatically adjust for more entries into the labor force than actually are there.

The result in June, it said, was the seasonally adjusted decline of 640,000 in the unemployment rate.

Shiskin, in pointing out the statistical quirk before the June figures were announced, said the true jobless rate could be as much as three-quarters of a per cent higher than the official figure.

Shiskin said in a statement that the Labor Department did not try to compensate for the misleading seasonal adjustment procedure in June because that would mean a change in the procedure that would involve changing other months of the year as well and could be interpreted as manipulation of the figures.

But he said by another method, which he offered for illustrative purposes, the unemployment for June would have been a seasonally adjusted 8.7 per cent — down from 8.8 per cent in May.

The unadjusted unemployment rate in June — the total without any seasonal considerations — was 9.1 per cent, up from 8.3 per cent in May. But Shiskin pointed there is usually an increase in unemployment in June even under favorable economic conditions.

"The question is whether the rise was larger or smaller than the normal seasonal change," he said, indicating it is not now possible to say.

The June report said the number of so-called discouraged workers — persons wanting jobs but who have given up looking and therefore are no longer counted in the labor force — was at a record 1.2 million in the second quarter of the year, up from 1.1 million in the first quarter.

The number of discouraged workers had increased by 460,000 in the previous two quarters.

SHADES OF PETROCELLI— Anthony Petrocelli, the TV lawyer, is always devising ways to beat parking meters. The driver of this car may have borrowed a page from Petrocelli's book. The red flag on the meter indicating time had expired, and a sign on the windshield reading "Out of Gas." Then, too, the driver may just be the victim of the recent boost in gasoline prices. ### John Mitchell is disbarred

NEW YORK (AP) — Former U.S. Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, a key figure in the Watergate scandals which led to President Richard M. Nixon's resignation, was disbarred Thursday in New York State.

Five judges of the Second Department Appellate Division in Manhattan ruled unanimously that Mitchell had automatically ceased to be "an attorney and counsellor at law of the State of New York" at the moment of his conviction in the Watergate cover-up trial.

The disciplinary proceedings against Mitchell were brought by the Association of the Bar of the City of New York.

Despite optimistic talk, Illinois unemployment lines still growing

CHICAGO (AP) — Despite widespread talk of a brightening economic picture for the nation, the unemployment lines in Illinois continue to grow longer.

Figures released today by the state Department of Employment Security show that in June 8.5 per cent of the workforce was unable to find jobs, up from 8.3 per cent in May.

For the nation as a whole, the unemployment rate improved, from 9.2 per cent to 8.6, but officials cautioned that the shift may be a statistical quirk and that the bleak picture may not have improved.

The increase in unemployment in Illinois was the biggest month-to-month jump this year, said Christopher Nugent, administrator of employment security.

Unexpected delays in recalling experienced workers and large numbers of students seeking jobs may account for the Illinois increase, Nugent said.

"Unemployment throughout Illinois remains high and will continue high for the rest of the year," he said.

One of the worst areas in the state is Decatur, where for the third consecutive month the unemployment rate has gone up; the latest jump from 10.3 to 10.6 per cent.

Nugent said the gradual phasing out of a major electrical appliance firm and other industrial layoffs were the important factors in Decatur's employment situation.

Time exposure look at festival carnival

There are always interesting photographs to be taken at any carnival.

Screaming girls and boys, hair flying, zipping past the lens of the camera, make good photo studies. Then there are the children, eating cotton candy, driving miniature cars, jumping in delight.

And the games, a mouse crawling across a board into different colored holes as the players anxiously watch. Rings being tossed at a battery of prizes.

There is always a good picture at the concession where baseball throwers hit a target to dump some civic figure into a tank of water.

But Timothy Lyon, who is a part-time photographer at The Telegraph, took a different view. These photos were all taken Thursday night at the carnival in Page Park. Using a tripod and time exposures, he came up with these pictures created by the lights on the rides as they spun riders around and around.

Ford proposes a 'detente with nature'

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Proposing "a detente with nature," President Ford pledged today a firm commitment to cleaning up the environment but cautioned he must balance that against economic considerations.

Ford flew to Ohio to dedicate a $30-million National Environmental Research Center in Cincinnati, address a White House conference on domestic policy here, then appear in Cleveland at a Republican fund-raising dinner.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the entire transportation cost for Ford's trip was being paid by the Republican National Committee. Nessen had said earlier that part of the expense would be paid for by the party.

In the future, Nessen said, a proportional arrangement will be worked out when Ford travels as "candidate, head of the Republican party or as President."

He said the party would pick up the entire transportation tab for this trip because a formula for the proportion had not yet been worked out.

No paper Friday

The Dixon Evening Telegraph will not be published Friday, the Fourth of July. Regular comics usually found in the Friday paper are published today.

The newspaper offices will close at 5 p.m. today and reopen at 8 a.m. Saturday.

In his text for the dedication of the research center built by the Environmental Protection Agency, Ford said, "You have my pledge that this country will remain firmly committed to seeking a cleaner and healthier environment."

"As long as I have anything to say about it, this country's symbol will never be an empty beer can in a river of garbage," Ford declared.

However, he said that as President, "I can never lose sight of another insistent aspect of our environment — the economic needs of the American people."

"I pursue the goal of clean air and pure water but I must also pursue the objective of maximum jobs and continued economic progress ... If accomplishing every worthy environmental objective would slow down our effort to regain energy independence and a stronger economy, then I must weigh all factors involved."

In asserting, "I would suggest a detente with nature," Ford said:

"We have too long treated the natural world as an adversary rather than as a life-sustaining gift from the Almighty. If man has the genius to build, he must also have the ability and the responsibility to preserve."

Ford termed the Cincinnati laboratory part of "the foundation of an effort to protect and secure this environment."

The White House conference at which Ford scheduled an appearance was similar to others he has attended in many parts of the country.

Give citizens guns, protection

Many members of Congress and state legislatures are voting to disarm our citizens. Why is this their objective, to take away protection of good people who furnished the votes to elect these lawmakers? Why do they want to punish the taxpayers who supply the money to pay their salaries of $42,500, plus large fringe benefits?

Congress should pass a law that all citizens should have guns to help the police departments arrest criminals.

Congress refuses to punish severely the criminal, but desires to allow judges to give mild sentences that the unlawful enjoy.

Bankers, merchants, all businesses need guns to save their own lives, which seems just.

The Reader's Digest is persistent in its attack on gun ownership that in one article it has gone too far. It states there were 27,000 fatal gun accidents. The figure from the National Safety Council is 2,700. They were just in too much of a hurry to emphasize their viewpoint. If the Reader's Digest wanted to benefit its readers they would urge Congress to pass laws to punish the unlawful severely. Then there would be less crime.

Which group are you for—the 90 per cent of the people who are law-abiding citizens or the smaller group that steal or kill to gain possession of money?

Give the citizens both guns for protection and laws that will also protect them.

Keep It Ringing

Still self-evident

Not many Americans could recite the Declaration of Independence if called upon to do so. Nor should they be expected to, for it speaks of many things that are so much dead history.

But it must be a rare person who has not made its salient phrases a permanent part of his memory: "We hold these truths to be self-evident—all men are created equal—endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights—life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

The bulk of the Declaration, all the many "he has's" listing the numerous grievances the colonies had against George III, holds little interest for us today. It was not that way in the beginning, though, as Donald Barr Chidsey reminded us a few years ago in a fascinating book about the document, "July 4, 1776."

When the Declaration was first published, he wrote, and for some years afterward, the opening paragraphs caused little comment one way or the other. Philosophy was the fashion in 1776 and it was taken for granted that there would be a flowery and a high-principled apologia before the real argument was gotten to.

"The colonists were interested in more immediate matters. Philosophy was for the intellectual, an appropriate decoration but in itself without significance. The men on the street, or in the field, wanted sterner stuff, noisier, a specific hammer-and-tongs attack upon an actual physical being, namely King George."

Today, it is just the opposite. We couldn't care less about this section of the Declaration. We are no longer angry at King George. It is the philosophical introduction, as Chidsey noted, that the world has come to love. Indeed, to most Americans, it is the Declaration of Independence.

Being such a fundamental part of the American credo, it is something we cannot be neutral about. We are still arguing—perhaps more today than ever before in our history—about what it really means to say that "all men are created equal" and how such a belief is to be translated into action. It is not trouble at all to get a controversy going as to whether there is even a Creator, much less one who created men with "certain inalienable rights."

As a scientific treatise, as a statement of provable fact, the Declaration of Independence leaves much to be desired. But as a testament of the human spirit, as a guide and a goal—and a goad—for posterity, as a dream and a faith we are still dismally far from realizing yet cannot let go of, there is nothing to compare with it.

No nation ever had such a birth certificate as this cherished piece of parchment, our Declaration of Independence.

Outspoken Founding Father

By TOM TIEDE
PHILADELPHIA (NEA)—Most historians of the American Revolution are as one in believing the United States of today owes as much to the pen of Thomas Paine as to the sword of George Washington. Yet after 199 years of thanksgiving the popular sentiment forgets the former in favor of the latter. Where Washington is recalled as a sober, dignified champion, Paine's memory is faded by a thousand doubts and by unfortunate revisionism.

Nowhere is the callous historic treatment of Paine more evident, perhaps, than in his hometown. Here where the nation was born, largely because Paine summoned up the colonists' consensus, the radical humanist is remembered as less a hero than a heretic. No marked trace remains of his lodgings, his workplaces, his hangouts. No experts or biographers are available here for his defense. He is not dishonored, exactly; neglected is the word.

To be sure, Tom Paine was never the ideal hero, the kind easily accepted for eternal memorials. An eccentric, wandering misfit for almost all of his life, he likewise specialized—with one magnificent exception—in personal failures. British born, a secondary school dropout, he spent the first half of his life in hopeless personal and professional insolvency. He could not make it as a teacher, a grocer, a tobacconist, a sailor—and at age 37, owing to a fortunate relationship with Benjamin Franklin, and facing debtors prison, he fled London for Philadelphia in 1774.

Even now it is difficult to envision an immigrant less likely to succeed. Paine was a drunk, an indolent, he was without specific skills and also unreliable. Yet in just over a year he constructed the 79 pages of Common Sense which became the gospel of American independence. Until that point colonialists were hardly united as to separation from Britain, and even many militants wavered on all-out war. But Common Sense became the best seller of its time (equivalent sales today would be 45 million copies) and the issue was joined. "Everything that is right or reasonable pleads for separation," Paine wrote. Thus the great battle began.

Had Tom Paine died in the revolution, dreadful thought, he would doubtless have lived better in the memories of his countrymen. As it was, he continued to wander after independence, back to Europe to foment more revolution, then back to America where his reputation disintegrated. His writings in later years were less precise, certainly less accepted. He became known as a troublemaker, anti-Christian in character, and slovenly. The state of New York once refused him the right to vote. Attempts were made on his life. He died at 72, in solitude, resurrected only periodically since, in public news, as when Theodore Roosevelt in describing his memory called him "a dirty little atheist."

Occasionally, an attempt is made to return Tom Paine to the front yard of historic respect. A century ago in Philadelphia, as example, some celebrants of the American centennial commissioned a bust of the philosopher for Independence Hall. When it was finished, however, officials rejected it, one man saying Paine was not the kind of figure who would enhance the Hall. The bust was offered again in 1896 and 1901, and rejected by way of inaction. Finally, in 1905, the bust was accepted; but 25 years later it was removed from the Hall, placed in basement storage, and has never been returned.

Philadelphia authorities say Paine's character had nothing to do with the rejection of his bust; rather, it was removed because it "lacks authenticity," that is, it was not an original fixture in Independence Hall. Perhaps. In any event its rejection is fitting, for such was the story of the man's life.

Today Tom Paine's bust sits in the obscurity of a private office here, a reminder that this fallible man taught us much, but not enough.

Take it from Here

REFLECTIONS— Watergate was termed a tragedy by many persons, including President Ford, and truly it was for those individuals who played central roles in the illegal activities which took place.

Propelled by some obsession which escapes rational comprehension, a handful of the most powerful politically men in the United States, acted without regard to the laws of the land inhabited by the people who had elevated them into highly trusted offices.

In simple language, the most naive political prognosticator could have perceived Richard M. Nixon would win over Sen. George McGovern by a huge margin. Thus the elaborate and illegal, frantic activities of the Committee to Re-Elect the President (CREEP) were quite unnecessary.

On this eve of the 199th birthday of this nation, we look back on Watergate as a dramatic demonstration of the country which the Founding Fathers on July 4, 1776 instituted, pledging their lives, their honor and their property to assure that the state which was born by their signatures should survive and prosper in political freedom and take its place among the nations of the world, in good and stable condition.

Remembering, the government of the United States governs with the consent of the governed, we consider it a high testimonial to our form of government that the judicial branch and the legislative branch of our government successfully challenged a chief executive and a vice president.

The vice president fell first, resigning and confessing to a reduced charge for accepting kickbacks while an officer of the state of Maryland.

Following the fall of the vice president whose role had been to castigate the press and any other dissenters to the political philosophy of the Nixon administration, President Nixon picked one of Michigan's congressmen, Gerald Ford, to succeed Spiro Agnew.

As the days of 1974 passed the halfway mark and went on through July and extended into early August, the nation was introduced to the last frantic days of coverup of Nixon and Company.

On Aug. 9, Nixon called Vice President Ford into the Oval Office and what was said between them may be forever secret, but the President did tell the vice president, he was going to resign his office.

This momentous announcement was made without any threat to the transfer of power from an elected chief executive of the country to a person who was not elected by the people.

No tremor of fear or panic swept through the people of this nation when Ford was invested with the power of the President of the United States, even though he had not been elected by the people to that office.

Today, the nation's chief executive and the country's vice president both were not elected to the offices they hold by the people of the nation.

We suggest this topping of an elected president and a vice president in any country in the world could not occur as it did in the United States and this reaffirms the political health and stability of our government being a tribute to those courageous men who signed the Declaration of Independence on July 4, 199 years ago.

Things Dixon Talked About

10 YEARS AGO
The Fifth United States Army Band thrilled more than 2,500 persons Friday night at the City Bandshell as it played a formal concert as part of the Petunia Festival. The band's director kept the audience almost spellbound with stirring marches, novelty numbers and classical selections.

50 YEARS AGO
It's circus day, and Hully Gee, comin' right along with the Fourth of July, ain't we havin' fun? The afternoon performances merited the fine advance notices. Features were many. Modoc, the mammoth elephant who worked with two others in the center ring, gave a remarkable exhibition, especially in the track dance.

Playing Through

Voice of the people

To the Editor:

I am rather late in coming to your defense but the week of our celebration of our independence seems an appropriate time to commend you for your editorials.

I also like the stance of your syndicated columnists, except Tom Tiede.

A recent letter said you took an historical view of things because you were critical of the People's Republic of China. Mr. Roe said people were far better off there than before the Communist takeover. I wonder if they really are. Judging by the large numbers who have risked death to escape this so-called "paradise" there is a doubt in my mind.

A former missionary to China, who was imprisoned there by the Communists for a year, told how land reform was achieved. The Reds shot every fifth landowner after lining them up. I wonder if Mr. Roe is in favor of capital punishment here. He can be sure it is practiced in China—for what we would consider minor offenses.

People's private lives are ruthlessly regulated. Their jobs are not ones they choose but ones which are assigned to them.

As I understand cant (not can't as Mr. Roe wrote it), it is a sort of thoughtless repetition of firmly held ideas which can't be changed by any amount of evidence to the contrary. Those who persist in repeating how wonderful everything is in Red China are also guilty of cant. I saw and heard Shirley MacLaine going on about how perfect everything was there. I'll guarantee her one thing, no Red Chinese would dare come here and go back with a glowing report about the United States. If she were there for a year or so, she no doubt would find out the ruthless discipline by which their so-called perfection was attained.

This is not to say we couldn't do with some discipline and cleaning up of our country. My worry is that those who are enamored with Communist achievements in China will be naive enough to throw the baby—our freedom so bravely won—out with the bath water and accept a Red solution for our problems.

Cooper not dismayed by Thompson move

CHICAGO (AP) — Former U.S. Atty. James Thompson's announcement for the Republican nomination for governor has not dismayed Richard Cooper, the other announced aspirant for the GOP nod.

"I'm delighted that Thompson has announced," Cooper said in an interview Tuesday.

But Cooper, a wealthy businessman who heads Weight Watchers Inc. of Chicago and has various interests in real estate and investment banking, is politically untried and unknown. His chances are remote.

At Thompson's first news conference as a gubernatorial candidate, he attacked Gov. Daniel Walker and not at his opponent in the Republican primary.

"I'm not convinced the present governor can provide the effective leadership the state needs," Thompson said Tuesday. "He is providing hit and run leadership, dropping a problem in the lap of the General Assembly and then running."

Walker responded confidently.

"I can beat any announced Democrat in the primary and any announced Republican in the general election," he said.

No one mentioned Cooper.

And yet for the Illinois Republican establishment, which already has lined up behind Thompson, Cooper's candidacy remains an imponderable.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The 74-year-old grandmother of Cher Bono's new husband says she hopes grandson Gregg Allman gets along fine with his new wife but it would be nice if "she starts wearing more clothes."

Myrtle Allman laughed when she made the comment during an interview Tuesday. Allman, 27, and Cher, 29, were married in Las Vegas on Monday.

"I've only seen Cher on television," said Mrs. Allman. "She seems very talented, very versatile and I'm sure I'll love her."

Allman is the pianist for the Allman Brothers Band, a successful rock group. Cher was granted a divorce from singer Sonny Bono last week.

NASHVILLE (AP) — County music singer Roy Clark was released Tuesday from St. Thomas Hospital, where he had been undergoing treatment for pneumonia. Clark was admitted to the hospital last week.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lt. Gen. Daniel James Jr. is in line to become the first black to be promoted to four-star rank of full general.

The Senate is expected to approve without opposition James' nomination.

FOND DU LAC, Wis. (AP) — U.S. Sen. William Proxmire spent a day working with a crew of three garbage collectors. Over-all, there are about 1,200 generals and admirals in the U.S. armed services.

The Wisconsin Democrat, who spent Monday filling in for a vacationing crew member, said: "There's a lesson to be learned by going out and working with these fellows."

The four-man crew picked up 1½ truckloads in 6½ hours. Proxmire said he was impressed with the incentive program which allows garbage men to end their work day when they've completed their route.

Miss Burtness weds Mr. Johnson

MR. AND MRS. DAVID W. JOHNSON

ORFORDVILLE, Wis. — The Orfordville Lutheran Church in Orfordville, Wis., was the setting of a recent marriage ceremony which united Miss Kim Irene Burtness, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Burtness, Orfordville, and David William Johnson, son of the Guy Johnsons, Dixon.

The ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Carmen Thorson, pastor of the Orfordville Lutheran Church, and the Rev. Ronald Anderson, pastor of the Peoples Church, Beloit, Wis. The organist for the ceremony was Ron Banatta, Kaneville, and the vocalist was Mrs. Thomas Giles, Orfordville, Wis.

Baskets of white carnations and hurricane lamps decorated the church while white carnations and a candle candelabrum highlighted the altar.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a gown of ivory polyester crepe. The empire styled gown was complemented with a Juliet cap and a floor length cathedral veil. As the bride was escorted to the altar, she carried a cascade of orange tinted daisies and carnations.

Mrs. Thomas Giles, Orfordville, Wis., served as the matron of honor. Her polyester spring orange gown was embroidered in a brown leaf design. The gown was styled with a long sleeve button jacket with a brown ascot tie at the neck. Also attending the bride and wearing identical gowns as the matron of honor was Miss Karen Welke, Des Plaines;

Miss Kristy Warnke, West Dundee; Miss Debbie McCartney, Orfordville, Wis.; Mrs. Lynn Wiles, Rockford; Mrs. Beth Johnson, Kirkland, Wis.; and Mrs. Sue Burtness, Evansville, Wis. Each attendant carried a single stem rose.

Dennis Maaekstad, DeKalb, served at the bridegroom's best man and groomsmen were Bob Schneider, DeKalb; David Wiles, Rockford; Allen Burtness, and Tom Giles, Orfordville, Wis.; Steve Burtness, Evansville, Wis.; and Dave Welsh, Madison, Wis. Allen Burtness and David Wiles also served as ushers for the ceremony.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the parlor of the church. The bridal table was decorated with blue and white checked table cloths with plants adding to the bridal atmosphere. The wedding cake was decorated in the bride's chosen colors of orange and white.

Following the wedding trip to Northern Minnesota and Canada, the couple plan to reside at 620½ E. Grant Highway, Marengo.

The new Mrs. Johnson, a graduate of Northern Illinois University, holds a degree in vocal music education.

Mr. Johnson, who holds a degree in electrical engineering from Northern Illinois University, is presently employed at Arnold Engineering, Marengo.

Polly's Pointers

Polly's Problem
DEAR POLLY — Would you please tell me how to get nail polish out of my 100 per cent Fortel polyester jacket? — MRS. A.H.

DEAR MRS. A.H. — Take your pick of the following Pointers. A Department of Agriculture bulletin says nail polish remover may be used for this on any fabrics except acetate, Arnel, Dynel or Verel — but ALWAYS test first.

A chart from a well-known soap and detergent maker says the same. Place stain face down on paper towels and sponge the back with the polish remover until the stain disappears, then launder. During the stain removal process change towels frequently.

A leading washing machine manufacturer says NOT to use the remover but to sponge with pure amyl acetate, launder. If stain persists sponge with rubbing alcohol to which a few drops of ammonia have been added.

Take your pick but no matter what you try test on your fabric first. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — While doing volunteer work in a hospital gift shop I discovered how filthy money really is — hence my Pet Peeve. At many lunch counters, and one where I often eat, the girl who makes my sandwich also picks up dirty bills, gives me the change and then goes on to make another sandwich. It seems there should be a law governing this. A cashier should always make change and the girls who handle food should never be allowed to touch our dirty money. — MAE

DEAR POLLY — My first pointer is the method I found helpful in teaching my young son the different colors. I save the many bright-colored caps from spray cans to use for this. Holes can be punched in the tops so they can be strung together and always be at hand with none lost. A piece of tape with the color name written on it can be stuck on the inside so they also can learn to identify the word with the color.

My other Pointer is for plant lovers. Many of the plant foods on the market have to be dissolved in water and call for a large amount of water — more than needed by the person with just a few plants. I thoroughly wash an empty dish detergent bottle and put the mixed plant food in it so it is ready for later use in a handy watering can. This keeps the mixture at room temperature which is better for many plants than the shock of cold water. No waste either. — DEBRA

DEAR POLLY — We know all about the pictures we put in our photo albums, but in future years our grandchildren and great-grandchildren would be grateful if we write names, places, dates and the relationship of the people shown on the photos. Pictures mean more if they know such information. If your album is filled with unmarked pictures sit down on a rainy day, reminisce and then fill in the pertinent information. — MRS. C.B. S.

DEAR POLLY — To make spices and small containers more easily available make your own Lazy Sasan for the cupboard self. Drill a hole in a tin pie pan, insert a screw and attach it to the shelf. Leave the screw just loose enough so the plate will turn. — MARGARET

DEAR POLLY — I have looked in many stores in many states for a square cake plate. I have found them on pedestal bases but that is not practical for everyday use or for storing cakes. I own numerous round ones but what can I put a cake on that was baked in a square pan? — CHARLOTTE

DEAR CHARLOTTE — I think if you would look at open stock china you would find some pattern with a square chop plate that would do. In the meantime, why not cover a square of heavy cardboard with aluminum foil and then put the cooled cake on that. What do you other readers do? — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Those paper perfume samples that come in bills or other mail as advertisements to introduce new products add great fragrance to the contents of my dresser drawers. Empty perfume and cologne bottles do the same. Neither makes clothes smell too strongly yet they last for quite awhile. — MRS. M.E.T.

Dear Ann

by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: A reader recently referred to that column about the woman who did her housework in the nude as your all-time classic. I disagree. I believe the one about the meat loaf beats the nude housewife to smithereens. Will you print it again, please? — Still Laughing In Omaha

Dear Still: My sister in Omaha (whose recipe it was) didn't do much laughing when that column appeared. She nearly had to have her phone taken out. People kept calling her with "complaints" and "suggestions." But here's the column — with pleasure.

Dear Ann: That dame in Michigan who didn't like your meat loaf is nuts. Only a moron would try a new recipe on guests. I MADE it for my family and they said it was the best they ever ate. I have orders to serve it every week. — Love You

Dear Love: Read on. It seems I've started something.

Dear Ann: Your meat loaf is delicious. I tried it yesterday and my poker club raved. I left off the bacon because we keep kosher. If you have a recipe for beet borsht I'd like to have it. — Miami

Dear M.: Sorry, no beet borsht recipe. I'm quitting while I'm ahead.

Dear Ann Landers: I never measure anything and I hate recipes. But I tried your meat loaf and it was terrific. The lettuce.

Deep-dish blueberry pie

Filling:
4 cups fresh blueberries
2 cups sugar
1-3rd cup flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice

Topping:
¾ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
2 tablespoons sugar
1½ teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cardamom or nutmeg
¼ cup butter or margarine
1-3rd cup milk

To prepare filling, mix blueberries, sugar, flour, salt and lemon juice in medium bowl, then turn into 1-quart casserole. To prepare topping, mix flour, sugar, baking powder, salt and cardamom in medium bowl. Cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse meal. Add milk and stir just until smooth. Form into a ball and roll out on floured surface to a circle 9 inches in diameter, or 2 inches larger than diameter of casserole. Place over blueberries and seal over edge. Bake in 400-degree oven 40 minutes, until topping is browned. Serve warm with ice cream. Makes 6 servings.

Couple honored with dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Hobbs were recently honored at a dinner in honor of their 40th wedding anniversary. The dinner was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hobbs and family.

Molded Salads for summer eating

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

Molded salads and desserts prove favorites of those who enjoy the texture and refreshing taste of chilled foods during warm days. A chicken mousse with cucumber sauce and a cherry salad ring are do-ahead dishes that also keep well in the refrigerator for snacking or they can be served more than one day. A new ring mold makes it easier to turn out gelatin or molded treats without damage.

CHICKEN MOUSSE
3-ounce package lemon gelatin dessert
1 cup hot water
1 cup reserved juice from 16-ounce can light seedless grapes (plus cold water, if needed)
½ cucumber (sliced, but not peeled)
2 cups diced cooked chicken
2 tablespoons chopped stuffed olives
1 (16-ounce) can light seedless grapes
½ cup finely chopped celery
½ cup mayonnaise
½ cup sour cream
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt

Stand thin slices of cucumber around side of ring mold. Dissolve gelatin in 1 cup hot water. Add 1 cup reserved juice. Carefully spoon a little gelatin mixture into mold to set slices. Refrigerate until gelatin is completely hardened. Combine chicken, chopped olives, grapes and celery. Spoon into mold. Combine remaining gelatin, mayonnaise, sour cream, lemon juice and salt. Pour into mold and refrigerate until firm. Serve with Cucumber Sauce. Serves 10 to 12.

CUCUMBER SAUCE
½ cup sour cream
½ cup mayonnaise
½ cup finely diced cucumber
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Combine and serve chilled.

CHERRY SALAD RING
3 ounce package black cherry gelatin dessert
1 cup hot water
1 cup juice from cherries
½ cup mayonnaise
4½ ounces non-dairy whipped topping
1 No. 303 can dark sweet pitted cherries, drained
½ cup chopped walnuts
½ teaspoon grated orange rind

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Add juice. Refrigerate until syrupy. Fold in mayonnaise and whipped topping. Fold in remaining ingredients and spoon into ring mold. Refrigerate until firm. Serves 10 to 12. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

By Oswald & James Jacoby

There is nothing to the play of today's hand. The defense takes the first trick, declarer the next 12.

There is a lot to the bidding. North only holds 11 high-card points, but his strong six-card suit gives him a sound opening bid. South's one-heart response is normal and North elects to rebid two diamonds rather than give an immediate raise with just three trumps.

South's three-club bid is what is sometimes called a "True reverse." The bid shuts out a return to two hearts and by definition is a reverse bid even though the hearts and clubs have been bid in order to rank. It is also a game-forcing bid.

North's jump to four hearts is a very good bid indeed. It shows three good hearts. With four hearts he would have raised hearts right away. It also says: "Partner, you have forced to game, I like hearts and if you want to go on to a slam it is up to you. I have told my all."

South does want to go on. He had intended to raise diamonds, but now there is no reason to go to the minor suit and he Blackwoods to the slam.

Miss Erickson honored with shower

OHIO — Sally Erickson, June 29 bride of David Taylor, was honored recently with a miscellaneous bride! shower in the parlors of First Lutheran Church.

Forty guests were present. Decorations were in mint and white with pastel flowers.

Mrs. Bob Brandau gave an appropriate reading, Mrs. Dennis Hubbell assisted with gifts, and Mrs. Jim Erickson and Mrs. Don Erickson, mother and aunt of the honoree, poured.

Hostesses were: Mrs. Felix Johnson, Mrs. Darrell Oberle, Mrs. Bob Dale, Mrs. Bob Anderson, Mrs. Art Gugerty, Mrs. Bob Brandau, Mrs. Gilbert Essex and Mrs. Ed Yucus.

Attention! Prospective brides

Because of misunderstanding on wedding pictures, The Telegraph is asking prospective brides to arrange for good black-and-white wedding pictures for use with wedding stories.

Color photographs and black-and-white prints off a color negative are unsatisfactory for good newspaper reproduction.

Rather than be disappointed by having a picture rejected by the newspaper, we are advising brides to insist on a black-and-white picture shot with black-and-white film.

Lebanese strife could menace Middle East peace

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent
Lebanon's political schizophrenia, which has produced fratricidal strife three times this year, could menace the whole peacekeeping process in the Middle East with calamitous consequence for the industrial West.

The fighting between Moslem-Arab extremists and rightist Christians has raised the possibility of civil war. That could produce widespread tumult not unlike the situation in 1958, when President Eisenhower landed American troops to restore order.

A painful squeeze from late Gamal Abdel Nasser's Egypt on one side and Khulayfawi's Syria on the other to force Lebanon into the Nasser camp provoked the 1958 crisis. This time the crisis is more of an internal one, though the volatile Libyan regime may be aiding the Arab extremists.

In any case, the situation is been deadly dangerous. Some feel the very existence of Lebanon as a sovereign state is at stake unless the new "government of reconciliation" can pull it together.

The background: Lebanon, ancient land of the Phoenicians, has been independent only three decades. It existed as an entity by accepting a fiction — that the population of 3 million was divided precisely half and half so that power could be shared by Moslems and Christians equally. The president must be Christian, the premier Moslem, the cabinet divided.

The army of 15,000, its officers mainly Christian, has seen its function as preserving that balance. But Lebanon has a tradition of private armies. To day they greatly outnumber the official army.

Since 1948, Arab-Israeli hostility has been the foundation of Lebanon's woe. Camps on Lebanese soil shelter some 300,000 Palestinian refugees.

The rightist Phalange party, made up mostly of Maronite Christians and drawing support from the middle class, has a heavily armed private army of about 6,000 men drilled in urban guerrilla warfare.

Many Christians see the Palestinians as a state within a state, eroding Lebanon's sovereignty and threatening to draw her into an unequal military clash with Israel. Guerrilla use of Lebanon as a base for attacks on Israel and Israeli retaliation raise the prospect of steady escalation.

The dangers of a permanent state of turbulence are manifold. If recurrent urban guerrilla warfare should become all-out civil war, the Moslems might rally against the Christians. Syria, which supplies weapons and other support to the Palestinian guerrillas, might intervene.

The balanced Moslem-Christian facade would be destroyed.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE E-604: Polly P., aged 18, dated her high school classmate for the last semester of their senior year.

Then she eloped with him after their graduation.

Now, at the age of 20, she decided she couldn't remain with him any longer, and here are the reasons she cited:

(1) He has never held a job more than a few weeks in the two years of their marriage.

Moreover, he doesn't want to work, so he will not apply for jobs when they are listed in the newspaper or his friends refer him to them.

(2) Meanwhile, he sleeps till 10 o'clock each morning and thus has made it necessary for Polly to get a secretarial position, where she checks in at 8 a.m., five days per week.

(3) He bleeds her for his spending money and for a down payment on his new car, leaving her their old jalopy to drive to work.

Thus he keeps her broke and except for cash gifts her family slip to her, she'd often be without lunch money.

(4) And her husband often stays away several days and nights at a stretch, as he consorts with other women, using Polly's pay checks to finance his sexual escapades.

(5) His parents let them live in a mobile home on an adjacent lot, but seem fond of Polly and have assured their son he can no longer occupy the trailer if he and Polly ever break up.

(6) Polly has come to work on several occasions with a black eye and with welts on her body where he has beaten her with his fists.

(7) When she has asked him to take her to their class reunions or to attend school athletic contests, he has refused so she has been forced to attend them with one of the girl classmates who was her best friend in high school.

"Dr. Crane," Polly tearfully explained, "I have tried to be a good wife, but my husband refuses to cooperate in any way. In fact, I can't believe he ever did love me truly, even from the outset.

"Otherwise, why would he be so cruel as to use my earnings to pay for his dates with other women?"

"So would I be justified in suing for divorce?"

You Be Jury
You readers might debate this case, pro and con. For it clearly illustrates the need to widen a teen-ager's limited youthful dating experiences by using the actual knowledge of 600 happily married women in modern America.

Send for the "Tests for Husbands and Wives," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

Those scientific Rating Scales reveal the actual views of 600 happily married women, plus their 600 happily married husbands!

They were developed by personally interviewing each wife; then her husband, in private sessions, asking what they liked most in their mate vs. what they'd wish to change if they could do so without alienating the latter's affection!

Then I boiled down their hundreds of compliments and criticisms to the 50 most frequent compliments (Merits) and the 50 most fundamental criticisms (Demerits).

Before you go through any wedding ceremony, be sure you rate each other on those tests, for Polly accepted inferior matrimonial "merchandise" at the start but paid full price!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

The Doctor says:

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a daughter who has been a very light eater all her life. While she was a teenager she ate plenty of fruit but few vegetables. At college she lived on practically nothing. The dorm mothers and roommates were always concerned but nothing changed.

A year and a half ago she married, and I thought she would change her eating habits cooking for her husband. But, the man she married doesn't eat any better than she does. Neither one drinks milk or eats vegetables. She eats fruit, but he eats none at all.

They like meat and have plenty in their diet. Both are school teachers and my daughter goes all day without breakfast or lunch. They don't drink, smoke or use drugs (we are Mormons).

They have been going to a doctor because of their inability to have a baby and are very concerned because they want a family. Could their diet contribute to this problem? The doctor says my daughter has a low metabolism, but I don't think they have ever told him how they eat. My daughter also has severe migraine headaches. She tires easily and lacks the vitality of a person who is only 24.

Does their nutrition play a part in their inability to have children and the lack of vitality? Could you recommend some good books and give us some advice on how to help them? When they come to our house to eat we insist they eat right, but they do it without relish.

DEAR READER — For optimal health a person should have a balanced diet. The fact so many people get by without one is a tribute to how well the human body is able to cope with mistreatment.

Your description of your children's diet strongly suggests a calcium deficiency. Milk and milk products are our major source of calcium. Meat is not. They could be getting their vitamins with a daily tablet, but that leaves out needed bulk in cereal and vegetables and who knows what else.

If you want them to read a book on what the body needs for food and its effect on the energy system, have them go to the library and read my book, "Metabolism: Putting Your Food Energy To Work" (Harper and Row, 1974).

It is true that the amount of energy you have can be affected by your diet. The energy we need to run our bodies comes from releasing the energy that is in the food. Proteins, carbohydrates and fats are all hydrocarbons, and, like the hydrocarbon oil, release energy when broken down. Vitamins are important in the breakdown process, but the actual energy comes from the food.

Some couples having trouble starting a family are successful after being placed on thyroid. The extra boost seems to help both men and women in some cases. With the comment that your daughter has low metabolism, I would wonder if this might be helpful. Certainly an aid to improved fertility is optimal health, and proper nutrition is necessary for optimal health.

Sharp disagreement on Wallace

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic party leaders around the country disagree sharply in their assessments of the strength George C. Wallace likely will amass when the party selects delegates to its 1976 presidential nominating convention.

However, an Associated Press survey found general agreement among the leaders that it now appears highly unlikely that Wallace can gain enough support to win the party's presidential nomination, although his delegates could hold a crucial balance of power.

The survey, which produced responses from more than half the 50 states including 17 of the 30 now expected to hold primaries, conformed with an estimate of Wallace strength made at the party's national headquarters.

The estimate, based on Wallace's past showings and the way in which the 1976 delegates will be chosen, was that he would probably enter the 1976 convention with more than 720 delegates.

That is nearly double the 385.7 he received on the first ballot in 1972 and could surpass any other candidate — but it is far short of the 1,504 delegates needed to capture the 1976 Democratic nomination.

The wide disparity in forecasts is shown by the fear by party leaders in Wisconsin and Indiana that Wallace may win their presidential primaries, while leaders in neighboring Illinois, Minnesota and Nebraska see little support for the Alabama governor.

In part, the survey shows, the likely Wallace strength is affected by the kind of primary that is held. In a straight popularity contest, where delegates will be divided proportionately according to popular vote, Wallace is expected to do better than in states where delegates will be elected directly.

And his own political strategists believe that he will do less well in states that pick their delegates by caucuses and state conventions than in those that have presidential primaries.

Responses to the AP survey indicated that, in advance of a formal presidential announcement, Wallace organizations are being formed in some states where he has done well in the past — including New Mexico and North Carolina — and some where he hasn't, such as California and Massachusetts.

In the South, Wallace will be tested by a number of regional hopefuls — former Gov. Terry Sanford in North Carolina, Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen of Texas in his home state and in Tennessee, former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia in that state and in Florida, and possibly Sen. Dale Bumpers in Arkansas.

Only the newspaper packs so much punch into the wonderful world of sports. It not only tells who won, why they won—but a lot of background on players who contributed to the winning.

Coors boosting Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joseph Coors, the conservative millionaire whose family name is revered by beer drinkers and feared by liberal politicians, thinks Ronald Reagan would be a good presidential cure for the nation's political hangovers.

"I've met with Reagan recently and I think he is going to be a candidate," said Coors in a telephone interview Tuesday. "If Reagan announces — and I think he will — I plan to work for him and become a convention delegate for him."

Coors said he prefers the California governor to President Ford on the 1976 Republican ticket although it was Ford who nominated Coors to the Corporation for Public Broadcasting.

Coors, 57, is executive vice president and the younger of two brothers who own the Adolph Coors Co. of Golden, Colo., founded by their grandfather.

Coors, a political force in the conservative camp for many years, helps fund several organizations. One of them is the Committee for the Survival of a Free Congress which hopes to replace 100 liberal congressmen with conservatives in the next elections.

The Coors family and other persons associated with the Coors empire reportedly gave $20,000 of the $412,000 which the committee has collected since beginning last July.

Coors also wants no truck with Nelson A. Rockefeller on the presidential ticket, either as No. 1 or as No. 2. "I opposed him in 1968 and I will do it again," asserted the bespectacled Coors, who was a Colorado delegate pledged to Reagan that year.

"But my philosophy is not to work against some people, but to work for others," he said. "I will be working for somebody other than Vice President Rockefeller."

However, he declined to identify the "several others" whom he would rather see as vice president in case Ford wins the GOP top slot. Other conservatives have also expressed displeasure with Rockefeller.

Soundtracks of Dean films available

By STEPHEN FORD
NEW YORK (NEA)—He made only three films and died before he was 30 years old, yet sociologists, movie buffs and aspiring hoodlums still speak of James Dean in tones usually reserved for the Kennedy brothers or D. W. Griffith. The two-headed, slurring rebel without a cause dwells eternally in that privileged purgatory occupied only by the blessed damned, the outsiders whose abilities transcended their handicaps—Bogart, Poe, Dostoyevsky, Eugene V. Debs... you know who they are.

Warner Brothers, capitalizing on its piece of this enigma, has just released excerpts from the soundtracks of Dean's trio of films, "East of Eden," "Rebel Without A Cause" and "Giant." There is no comparison between hearing John Kennedy on vinyl delivering his inaugural speech of 15 years ago and hearing Dean, the ultimate punk, maul the English language in his inimitable way, yet WB's soundtrack album titled "James Dean" elicits that same eerie feeling.

OVER 14 years ago, Liverpool club owner Allan Williams managed this not very promising band which he talks about in a new book, "The Man Who Gave The Beatles Away."

to wish he had taken a puck in the vocal chords. . . . In the midst of their debut tour as America's next supergroup, Ian Hunter and Mick Ronson have stalled. The two decided their backup personnel was not what they wanted and have retired to regroup their forces. . . . Cajun fiddle wizard Doug Kershaw was married in Houston's Astrodome just prior to showtime June 21. . . . In what many suspect to be either a publicity ploy or extortion, Doug Weston, owner of L.A.'s famed Troubadour nightclub, announced it will close unless bookings pick up. The Troubadour's role in christening new acts is right up there with the Fillmore and would leave a substantial void in L.A.'s night action. . . . Andre Previn, conductor of the London Symphony Orchestra, has been appointed music director for the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, succeeding William Steinberg.

His "so you think they're such saints" approach is occasionally titillating and reveals some not very flattering habits the Fab Four acquired en route to Olympus. For instance, John Lennon may have impressed many with his nobility six years ago in Toronto when his fast for world peace spanned several days, but according to Williams, Lennon's reputation for gluttony spans two decades. Also, Williams' interviews with many former friends of Lennon reveal a very thick streak of violence in Mr. Give Peace A Chance.

No doubt there is much here that will seriously disillusion many a Beatles' fan and despite its crass swipe at the bacon, Williams' book does tell some tales the Beatles must now cringe over. But his jaundiced reporting and faulty memory (in addition to his racism, sexism and self-pity) make it difficult to swallow all that The Man Who Gave The Beatles Away serves up.

Uniforms a problem in America's first Army

EDITOR'S NOTE — The enlisted men and officers of America's first Army considered themselves equals, partly because there were few uniforms and it was hard to distinguish a private from a general. So George Washington issued color ribbons to the officers.

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer
CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — It was almost a joke, 200 years ago, to call the ragged collection of New England farmers the Continental Army, but it was all George Washington had.

On July 3, 1775, the Virginia plantation owner formally took command of 13,743 of these woody rebels.

Many of them had been camped out on the fringe of Boston for two months. They had come, some supplied for an overnight trip, to fight British soldiers who dared venture into the countryside of Lexington.

and Concord in search of patri-ot weapons.

Washington became the new commander-in-chief of the United Colonies, and it was his job to mold a fighting force that could defend the freedoms of English settlers still loyal to their king but upset with the government behind him.

With a few aides and a new general, Charles Lee, at his side, Washington rode into Cambridge on July 2 — 18 days after he was appointed by the Second Continental Congress in Philadelphia.

The roads were still wet from a recent rain that quiet Sunday. No one was sure when he would arrive, so there was no welcoming ceremony. Washington entered the little college town to find soldiers idling around Harvard Yard.

It was his first encounter with his new army, but earlier that day, in Watertown, members of the Provincial Congress warned him that he would not find "such regularity and discipline" in the troops as he might expect.

Their caution was understated.

The soldiers were ill-trained and unruly, dirty and sometimes drunk, dressed in tatters and armed with muskets and rifles of every age and description.

Except for a few who had fought the Redcoats in the Battle of Bunker Hill, most were untested in combat.

But balancing these shortcomings, the men were brave and driven by the excitement of the new freedom movement.

On that first day, Washington was conducted to the home of the president of Harvard, where he and Lee were assigned all but one of the rooms.

From the first, the wealthy, 6-foot-2 aristocrat exhibited the dignity he thought an officer needed to lead. When a surgeon, James Thacher, caught sight of him, he wrote in his journal:

"His Excellency was on horseback, in company with several military gentlemen. It was not difficult to distinguish him from all others. His personal appearance is truly noble and majestic, being tall and well-proportioned. His dress is a blue coat with buff-colored facings, a rich epaulette on each shoulder, buff under dress, and an elegant small sword; a black cockade in his hat."

After settling in, Washington met the colonial officers, among them Artemas Ward, who had commanded the army since it came together outside Boston.

Then, with another officer, Israel Putnam, as a guide, Washington went to work, even before he officially took command. They rode three-quarters of a mile through Cambridge to Prospect Hill, a low rise that gave the general his first sweeping view of the military problems ahead of him.

With a spyglass, he looked eastward to the ruins of Charlestown, where British sentinels were still standing guard after their bloody encounter with the patriots at Bunker Hill 15 days before.

A bit to the south was Boston, then a bulge of land at the tip of a narrow peninsula in the harbor. The town was the domain of British soldiers and loyalists, who rarely ventured past the shadow of their artillery. Further away was the village of Roxbury and Dorchester Neck.

In a wide semicircle outside Boston, the patriots had dug earthen fortifications, but Washington saw that many of them were feeble and poorly placed.

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Thursday, July 3, the 184th day of 1975. There are 181 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1775 — 200 years ago today — George Washington took command of the Continental Army at Cambridge, Mass.

On this date: In 1608, the French explorer, 672nggchamplain, laid the foundations of the Canadian city of Quebec.

In 1863, the Civil War Battle of Gettysburg ended after Confederate General George Pickett's troops suffered severe losses in his famous charge.

In 1890, Idaho became the 43rd state.

Strengthening them became Washington's first major concern so that he could keep the British trapped in Boston while he trained his men.

The next morning, July 3, Washington took command from Ward in a brief ceremony, and gave his first order. It was a request for his colonels to tell him how many men and how much ammunition they had.

Then Washington set out on another inspection tour, this time of the troops and fortifications on the southern edge of Boston.

Slowly, over the next months, Washington pulled his forces into something resembling an army.

One of greatest worries was the lack of distinction between the soldiers and their officers. Washington had been horrified to learn that many of the officers were elected by their units, and officers and enlisted men thought of themselves as equals.

One reason was a shortage of uniforms. Everyone looked alike. So Washington issued colored ribbons that distinguished the officers.

In an order to discourage the practice of bathing whilst the weather is warm enough to continue it, but he expressly forbids any persons doing it near the bridge in Cambridge, where it has been observed and complained of that many men lost to all sense of decency and common modesty, are running naked upon the bridge, whilst passengers and even ladies of the first fashion in the neighborhood are passing over it, as if they meant to glory in their shame."

"We need something MORE than revenue sharing, and the obvious thing is rock concert benefits to save the cities!"

Soundtracks of Dean films available

By STEPHEN FORD
NEW YORK (NEA)—He made only three films and died before he was 30 years old, yet sociologists, movie buffs and aspiring hoodlums still speak of James Dean in tones usually reserved for the Kennedy brothers or D. W. Griffith. The two-headed, slurring rebel without a cause dwells eternally in that privileged purgatory occupied only by the blessed damned, the outsiders whose abilities transcended their handicaps—Bogart, Poe, Dostoyevsky, Eugene V. Debs... you know who they are.

Warner Brothers, capitalizing on its piece of this enigma, has just released excerpts from the soundtracks of Dean's trio of films, "East of Eden," "Rebel Without a Cause" and "Giant." There is no comparison between hearing John Kennedy on vinyl delivering his inaugural speech of 15 years ago and hearing Dean, the ultimate punk, maul the English language in his inimitable way, yet WB's soundtrack album titled "James Dean" elicits that same eerie feeling.

OVER 14 years ago, Liverpool club owner Allan Williams managed this not very promising band which he talks about in a new book, "The Man Who Gave The Beatles Away."

one platinum album to an artist but Neil Diamond's "Jonathan Livingston Seagull," which long ago went over the one-million in sales, is now on the threshold of the two million mark and continues to sell 10,000 copies a month... Ritchie Blackmore, the volatile lead guitarist formerly with Deep Purple, has finally found enough musicians to tolerate his obnoxious and formed his own band, Ritchie Blackmore's Rainbow. Replacing him in Deep Purple is Tommy Bolin, ex-lead axe for the James Gang.

Missing the last bus out of Andes, N.Y., might be a real pain where the sun don't shine but it's no reason to fire a gun through your motel room door. That was the judgment of a court in Delhi, N.Y. where soul singer Wilson Pickett Jr. was found guilty on a charge of reckless endangerment for firing a pistol in his motel room last November in a fit of anger due to missing the last bus out of town. Pickett, 33, of Englewood, N.J., who had been in town with Isley Brothers on a hunting trip, faces sentencing next month...

Folkie John Hartford, who plys the Ohio River aboard the Delta Queen steamboat while working for his river pilot's license, will host a bluegrass cruise aboard the venerable sternwheeler Aug. 17-22... It isn't enough being accosted by them via the boobtube, America's video gladiators will soon accost us via record, too. Pittsburgh Steelers' QB Terry Bradshaw is currently in Nashville blitzing his tonsils for Mercury records, slugger Jerry Quarry finished a C&W album there last week and Flyers' bouncer Dave Shultz released a single some weeks ago that led many to wish he had taken a puck in the vocal chords... In the midst of their debut tour as America's next supergroup, Ian Hunter and Mick Ronson have stalled. The two decided their backup personnel was not what they wanted and have retired to regroup their forces... Cajun fiddle wizard Doug Kershaw was married in Houston's Astrodome just prior to showtime June 21... In what many suspect to be either a publicity ploy or extortion, Doug Weston, owner of L.A.'s famed Troubadour nightclub, announced it will close unless bookings pick up. The Troubadour's role in christening new acts is right up there with the Fillmore and would leave a substantial void in L.A.'s night action... Andre Previn, conductor of the London Symphony Orchestra, has been appointed music director for the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, succeeding William Steinberg.

His "so you think they're such saints" approach is occasionally titillating and reveals some not very flattering habits the Fab Four acquired en route to Olympus. For instance, John Lennon may have impressed many with his nobility six years ago in Toronto when his fast for world peace spanned several days, but according to Williams, Lennon's reputation for gluttony spans two decades. Also, Williams' interviews with many former friends of Lennon reveal a very thick streak of violence in Mr. Give Peace A Chance.

No doubt there is much here that will seriously disillusion many a Beatles' fan and despite its crass swipe at the bacon, Williams' book does tell some tales the Beatles must now cringe over. But his jaundiced reporting and faulty memory (in addition to his racism, sexism and self-pity) make it difficult to swallow all that The Man Who Gave The Beatles Away serves up.

Uniforms a problem in America's first Army

EDITOR'S NOTE — The enlisted men and officers of America's first Army considered themselves equals, partly because there were few uniforms and it was hard to distinguish a private from a general. So George Washington issued color ribbons to the officers.

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer
CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — It was almost a joke, 200 years ago, to call the ragged collection of New England farmers the Continental Army, but it was all George Washington had.

On July 3, 1775, the Virginia plantation owner formally took command of 13,743 of these woody rebels.

Many of them had been camped out on the fringe of Boston for two months. They had come, some supplied for an overnight trip, to fight British soldiers who dared venture into the countryside of Lexington and Concord in search of patriots of weapons.

Washington became the new commander-in-chief of the United Colonies, and it was his job to mold a fighting force that could defend the freedoms of English settlers still loyal to their king but upset with the government behind him.

With a few aides and a new general, Charles Lee, at his side, Washington rode into Cambridge on July 2 — 18 days after he was appointed by the Second Continental Congress in Philadelphia.

The roads were still wet from a recent rain that quiet Sunday. No one was sure when he would arrive, so there was no welcoming ceremony. Washington entered the little college town to find soldiers idling around Harvard Yard.

It was his first encounter with his new army, but earlier that day, in Watertown, members of the Provincial Congress warned him that he would not find "such regularity and discipline" in the troops as he might expect.

Their caution was understated.

The soldiers were ill-trained and unruly, dirty and sometimes drunk, dressed in tatters and armed with muskets and rifles of every age and description.

Except for a few who had fought the Redcoats in the Battle of Bunker Hill, most were untested in combat.

But balancing these shortcomings, the men were brave and driven by the excitement of the new freedom movement.

On that first day, Washington was conducted to the home of the president of Harvard, where he and Lee were assigned all but one of the rooms.

From the first, the wealthy, 6-foot-2 aristocrat exhibited the dignity he thought an officer needed to lead. When a surgeon, James Thacher, caught sight of him, he wrote in his journal:

"His Excellency was on horseback, in company with several military gentlemen. It was not difficult to distinguish him from all others. His personal appearance is truly noble and majestic, being tall and well-proportioned. His dress is a blue coat with buff-colored facings, a rich epaulette on each shoulder, buff under dress, and an elegant small sword; a black cockade in his hat."

After settling in, Washington met the colonial officers, among them Artemas Ward, who had commanded the army since it came together outside Boston.

Then, with another officer, Israel Putnam, as a guide, Washington went to work, even before he officially took command. They rode three-quarters of a mile through Cambridge to Prospect Hill, a low rise that gave the general his first sweeping view of the military problems ahead of him.

With a spyglass, he looked eastward to the ruins of Charlestown, where British sentinels were still standing guard after their bloody encounter with the patriots at Bunker Hill 15 days before.

A bit to the south was Boston, then a bulge of land at the tip of a narrow peninsula in the harbor. The town was the domain of British soldiers and loyalists, who rarely ventured past the shadow of their artillery. Further away was the village of Roxbury and Dorchester Neck.

In a wide semicircle outside Boston, the patriots had dug earthen fortifications, but Washington saw that many of them were feeble and poorly placed.

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Thursday, July 3, the 184th day of 1975. There are 181 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1775 — 200 years ago today — George Washington took command of the Continental Army at Cambridge, Mass.

On this date: In 1608, the French explorer, 672nggchamplain, laid the foundations of the Canadian city of Quebec.

In 1863, the Civil War Battle of Gettysburg ended after Confederate General George Pickett's troops suffered severe losses in his famous charge.

In 1890, Idaho became the 43rd state.

Strengthening them became Washington's first major concern so that he could keep the British trapped in Boston while he trained his men.

The next morning, July 3, Washington took command from Ward in a brief ceremony, and gave his first order. It was a request for his colonels to tell him how many men and how much ammunition they had.

Then Washington set out on another inspection tour, this time of the troops and fortifications on the southern edge of Boston.

Slowly, over the next months, Washington pulled his forces into something resembling an army.

One of greatest worries was the lack of distinction between the soldiers and their officers. Washington had been horrified to learn that many of the officers were elected by their units, and officers and enlisted men thought of themselves as equals.

One reason was a shortage of uniforms. Everyone looked alike. So Washington issued colored ribbons that distinguished the officers.

In an order to discourage the practice of bathing whilst the weather is warm enough to continue it, but he expressly forbids any persons doing it near the bridge in Cambridge, where it has been observed and complained of that many men lost to all sense of decency and common modesty, are running naked upon the bridge, whilst passengers and even ladies of the first fashion in the neighborhood are passing over it, as if they meant to glory in their shame."

NIU enrollment climbs Can't find jobs, so continue their education

DE KALB—Probably due to the sluggish economy, enrollment at Northern Illinois University continues to climb, increasing nearly 1,450 students this summer over one year ago.

The preliminary enrollment figures released Wednesday by NIU Analytical Studies Director Richard Cady, show 8,941 students registered for on-campus summer courses so far this summer, compared with 7,812 at the same time last year, an increase of 1,129 or 14 per cent.

Off-campus extension course enrollment jumped even more dramatically, a 45 per cent increase over a year ago with 1,025 this summer compared with 707 at this point last year, Cady said, pointing out that Northern continues to have the largest extension enrollments in the state. The on-campus and extension enrollments constitute a total increase of 1,447, or 17 per cent.

Cady noted there was a particularly big increase, over 20 per cent, in the number of transfer students this summer, 1,180 compared with 978 last year.

This is the fourth consecutive academic session that enrollment has increased from the previous year," observed NIU President Richard J. Nelson.

"We were up last spring, last fall, in this summer's intercession and now for the eighth week summer session. 'The slowdown of the economy certainly has not hurt enrollment and probably has helped it,' Nelson added.

"We're expecting another increase this fall of about five per cent, meaning about a thousand more students on campus than last fall, when 20,102 enrolled."

"Economic conditions seem to have affected enrollment and admissions here and all over the country," Cady agreed.

"In the 1930s, it was the same thing. Initially, people who couldn't find work went to school in greater numbers; but as the Great Depression grew deeper, people couldn't afford to take courses and the states lowered their levels of support. Also, don't overlook high quality programs at Northern. Northern has much to offer students. They vote with their feet when they come here."

William W. Parker, director of registration and records at Northern, points out reports of enrollment climbing at many other campuses this fall indicate "a general increase." Among reasons he's cited is that some people don't have enough money for vacations and instead are taking courses, he said.

"There's really no way to tie it down. We don't collect such data. But I walk the registration lines a great deal and a great many are here to complete courses they need to take on campus degrees they're earning mainly off-campus through the NIU extension program."

"Also, as the number of available posts in secondary schools declines, some teachers are returning here to retrain themselves in other areas of high demand."

Tending to confirm this, the summer figures show graduate student enrollment up 622 over last year to 5,016, a 14 per cent jump. Undergraduate enrollment climbed at about the same rate, up by 507 students, or 16 per cent, to 3,835.

"Based on prior experience, final figures for this summer should total about 9,100 on campus," Cady said, up 250 over projections made in May and representing the third largest summer enrollment in NIU history. (The record was in 1970, with 9,879, followed in 1972 with 9,463.)

Figures will not be final until mid-August because of 32 late-starting summer workshops, Cady emphasized.

During the three-week intercession at Northern in May, there were 2,290 students on campus, compared with 1,848 a year ago, up nearly 24 per cent. Intercession extension enrollment jumped from 244 to 382, up 56.6 per cent.

Renovation of field discussed

A proposal was expected to be submitted to the Dixon School Board at its July 16 meeting, listing specific recommendations for improving the A. C. Bowers athletic field. A committee of the board, comprised of James Dixon, president; James Greenlee and Gary Burg, met Wednesday night with representatives of the Dixon Boosters Club and the Rock River Chapter of the Illinois Society of Professional Engineers.

The group listed field lighting as the main priority item and discussed a three-year renovation program to include crowning the field, remodeling bleacher seats, enlarging the track to accommodate six lanes, and relocating the press box and concession stand.

Although no specific cost estimates were available, the work was expected to cost $150,000 over a five-year period. Financing of the project was not discussed.

Volunteer help was expected to play a major role in the renovation.

State's official bell at Mt. Morris

MOUNT MORRIS, Ill. (AP) — Linked by telephone circuits, replicas of the Liberty Bell will join together on Independence Day for a coast-to-coast tin-tinabulation.

At 2 p.m. EDT July 4, a descendant of one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence will gently tap the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia's Independence Hall. With that, another bell cast from the original will peal forth 13 times, once for each of the original states.

Joining at that point will be the bell of Independence Hall West in Buena Park, Calif., the official Illinois Freedom Bell at Mount Morris, and bells in the Illinois communities of Champaign, Rockford and Rock Island.

Linked by special telephone circuits and loudspeakers, the bells will be heard by thousands gathered for traditional picnics and parades.

The idea for a national bell tolling began in Mount Morris, a northern Illinois farming community of 3,100. In 1963, adopting an idea seen in a magazine, town fathers created the "Let Freedom Ring Committee" and held their first ceremony that Fourth of July.

In 1966, the town replaced its courthouse bell with a 125-year-old relic fished from the bottom of Lake Geneva in Wisconsin, where it had lain for 40 years. The Mount Morris Fourth of July celebration now attracts 10,000 to 25,000 persons.

"It's a thing of the spirit," says Clarence E. "Sandy" Sandstrom, one of the Committee's founders. "By God, if you read the papers these days you know how we need it, too."

Sandstrom, a 68-year-old retired lumberyard owner and village trustee, said historians have determined the Liberty Bell pealed its message of independence about 2 p.m. EDT July 4, 1776, which accounts for Friday's starting time.

"We had quite a few other states interested in taking part," he said. "We had sent away to all 50 governors and asked them for copies their Independence Day addresses...but it was just getting too big and we couldn't handle so many — maybe someday..."

Gov. Daniel Walker was scheduled to speak to Mount Morris residents today, signaling the official start of a three-day celebration. For its bicentennial spirit, the town will be presented the 1974 Freedom Foundation plaque, a patriotism award given annually to 37 communities and individuals across the country.

Holiday drivers to pay more

By The Associated Press

Those gasoline price increases announced this week will be waiting for you if you plan a drive through Illinois over the Fourth of July weekend.

A spot check of service stations and bulk suppliers shows the increases already are in effect and major oil company dealers are charging similar prices throughout the state — 63 and 64 cents a gallon for regular and 68 cents for ethyl.

Standard Oil of Indiana, biggest supplier in the Midwest, and Shell Oil Co. both announced increases of 3 cents a gallon. Atlantic Richfield Co. (ARCO) is charging 2 cents more and Texaco, Inc. is charging 1.4 cents more.

Dealers in some communities said Wednesday they had not been officially notified of the increases, but most raised prices anyway on Wednesday, the day after they were announced.

In Decatur, Standard Oil prices were raised from 60.9 cents a gallon (pump price) to 63.9 for regular, 65.9 for no-lead and 67.9 for ethyl. Texaco prices went up 1.4 cents, to 61.9 for regular. Arco and Marathon prices remained unchanged at 59.9 and 60.9 respectively, and Clark Oil, one of the largest independents, jumped regular prices nearly 8 cents a gallon, from 52.9 to 60.2 cents.

A Standard Oil dealer in Kinmundy, serving small communities throughout Marion County in south-central Illinois, said his retail customers raised prices to 63.9, 65.9 and 67.9, the same as did those in Decatur. Stations along Interstate 57, he said, were charging about one cent more.

Some Chicago-area dealers were among the lowest reported. Citgo dealers, who had not yet raised prices, were charging 57.5 for regular and 60.5 for ethyl (pump price). One Standard station said prices went up 3 cents to 62.5 for regular, 64.9 for unleaded and 66.9 for ethyl.

Several Clark Oil stations in the Metro East area near St. Louis reported regular prices at 59.9, and unleaded ethyl at 65.9.

Carbondale Shell and Standard dealers reported regular gas prices of between 62.9 and 63.9, and one Texaco station was charging 60.9, another 62.9.

According to Platts Oilgram, an oil industry newsletter, the three largest suppliers of Midwest independent stations—Koch, Triangle Refineries and Tenneco, have raised per gallon prices 3, 2½ and 4 cents respectively.

Herbert Hugo, senior editor of the newsletter, predicts gasoline prices will rise to 70 to 75 cents a gallon for regular by the first of the year.

President Ford's recent $1 a barrel tax on oil imports has been blamed for the latest round of price hikes.

Student describes trouble helping Viet orphans

DeKALB—Bryan Truman left here in April to find enough South Vietnamese orphans for 50 families.

He returned with only enough or three.

A senior history major at Northern Illinois University, Truman left school during spring semester for Saigon.

Truman was asked by a group of Chicago suburbanites to make the trip. He says he thinks he was asked because he had served as a translator for the U.S. Army in South Vietnam during the early 1970s.

The group, which wishes to remain anonymous, offered to pay his expenses. Truman says the trip cost the suburbanites $4,000.

When he arrived in Saigon on April 17, Truman says he found that the South Vietnamese government and U.S. government representatives were unwilling to help him.

South Vietnamese President Thieu ordered that no natives leave the country and the U.S. embassy in Saigon was allowing only those South Vietnamese to leave who had relatives in the United States, according to Truman.

He says the orphanages weren't helping him either because they feared Communist reprisals if they let orphans go to the United States.

Thieu's anti-emigration order

was ignored as South Vietnamese government employees and businessmen who worked with the U.S. government were getting out of the country, says Truman, noting that the peasants found it more difficult to leave.

He left Saigon himself on April 25, four days before the city fell.

Truman says he found six South Vietnamese orphans from three families at a Christian Missionary Alliance orphanage after he arrived in Guam. A member of the Alliance Church in Wheaton, he says he received permission from the orphanage to bring the orphans to Illinois, but had to wait 4½ weeks for an okay from the Guamanian government.

Truman came back to the United States on June 8. The orphans who had homes waiting for them, arrived two days later.

He says he thinks the journey was worthwhile.

"Without sounding religious, I think that's what God wanted me to do," Truman says.

The 24-year-old NIU student says his immediate task is to finish the incompletes he received on his spring courses. He plans to work on a master of arts degree in professional studies in Southeast Asia at the University of Hawaii starting next January. Truman says he eventually hopes to teach about Southeast Asia in a high school or a college. Truman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Christian Truman, live in Curtice, Ohio, near Toledo.

Youth attend camp

AMBOY—Twenty-eight boys and girls and 10 leaders from Congregational and United Methodist Churches participated in a week-long day camp recently at Crystal Lake, according to a report from the Rev. Henry J. Holverson.

Carol Machen, Sue Snow, and Sandy Vincent led the third and fourth grade group in a study of Bible lands and people. Winnie Stahr and Darlene Noble led the fifth and sixth grade course on St. Paul.

Joyce Gibson, Betty Shaw, and Crystal Lyons worked with the seventh and eighth grade course on "The Responsible Use of the Environment." Sandy Koppien was the song leader. The various counselors worked together with the campers on crafts projects which include bloc printing, decorating flower pots, making animal figures out of stones, making religious banners, beadmaking, making crosses, and designing name tags.

Joyce Gibson and the pastor led the morning devotions. The whole camp held a cookout lunch on Thursday. The campers participated in paddleboating on Friday afternoon.

At the church service last Sunday morning, Sandy Koppien, accompanied by Jean Glenn, led the campers in singing "Amazing Grace," "Morning Has Broken," "Let Us Break Bread Together," and "When All Men Shall Walk Together."

Dr. Captain discusses Bible

Do Christian young people read the Bible as much as they should? Is there a way to get them to read more?

Those were questions Dr. Phillip Captain, psychology professor at Campbellsville College, asked and tried to answer in a paper published in the winter issue of the Journal of Psychology and Theology, entitled "The Effect of Positive Reinforcement on Comprehension, Attitudes, and Rate of Bible Reading in Adolescents."

Dr. Captain began with statistics from a study of 3,000 teen-agers that showed only 25 per cent of the young Christians read the Bible daily. Another 26 per cent read the Bible a few times a week, and the remaining 49 per cent reported reading the Bible only once a week or less.

Besides the low rate of Bible reading, only 7.8 per cent of those responding were satisfied that they spent as much time as they should in Bible study.

From this data and other similar statistics, Dr. Captain concluded that more information is needed about ways young people can be helped to bring their behavior in line with the Christian teachings on Bible reading and study.

Dr. Captain conducted an experiment with a group of teenage Sunday School members, to test verbal praise from parents, and monetary rewards as possible reinforcers to help young people form good Bible reading habits.

The responses of the teens in terms of number of times they read the Bible during the week, their attitudes toward Bible reading, and knowledge of what they had read, were measured and charted in an effort to draw conclusions about the effects of the reinforcement.

In technical terms, the paper dealt with the results of his experiment which led him to the conclusion that "Reinforcement can be used effectively with adolescents within the Christian education setting both to increase the amount of Bible reading performed by students and to achieve positive attitude change toward Bible reading."

Dr. Captain said that the young person at the adolescent stage of development "does not seem to have outgrown his need to have proper reinforcement in order to continue learning and growing toward maturity, and the religious setting cannot be considered an exception to this."

"Just as a teen-ager continues to need proper reinforcers at school if he is to continue his intellectual learning, so also does he need proper reinforcers within the church setting if he is to continue learning and growing spiritually."

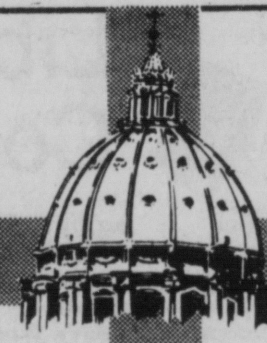

Campbellsville is a senior liberal arts college affiliated with the Kentucky Baptist Convention. Approximately one third of the students there are studying for church related vocations.

... a Treasury of Man's Noblest Aspirations in Religious Architecture

York Minster (ENGLAND)

The city of York enjoys a prominence - shared by few others - for historical significance and importance. Dating from the time of the Caesars, York saw Saxon Christianity flourish; felt the sting of Danish conquerors; and witnessed the crowning of Constantine The Great.

York, northernmost of Rome's military posts, was the birthplace of the introduction of Christianity into Britain. In the year 627, Paulinus, one of St. Augustine's forty companions, succeeded in converting the Saxon king, Edwin, who then reigned at Eborac - now York. Edwin erected a small wooden chapel for his baptism. A year later the chapel was replaced with a substantial stone church. However, after an incredible series of fires, restoration and recurring destruction to successive edifices on the same site, only the south transept - dating from the early 13th century - remains as part of the present minster.

This magnificent structure, the metropolitan church of northern England and the archbishopric of York, struggled many, many years with Canterbury for episcopal supremacy. It is the largest medieval church in northern Europe and is especially noted for its ancient glass. The east window of the minster 76 ft. by 32 ft. - is held to be the world's largest expanse of medieval stained glass. Completed by John Thornton of Coventry after three years of the most exacting craftsmanship, it contains over 200 sections - each a yard square - depicting impressive historical subjects. The immense western window, too, is an unrivaled specimen of exquisite and elaborate leafy tracery. It contributes appreciably towards making the facade the uncontestable finest in all Britain - being more perfect, architecturally and in details, than any other English cathedral.

This gigantic minster measures 519 ft. long externally (486 ft. internally); it is 104 ft. wide and has a choir 224 ft. in length - almost as long as the 262 ft. nave; the western towers reach to 196 ft., with the massive central tower just 2 ft. higher; the width of the transepts is 223 ft. The church occupies almost 64,000 sq. ft. The nave, begun in 1291, was unfinished until 1360. The western towers were begun in 1462 by John de Bermingham and, with their completion in 1474, the minster was finished after 250 years of dedicated labor. Because of the great width of the church the builders feared a stone-vaulted roof would prove too heavy to support and the roof, consequently, was wooden. The minster was almost destroyed by fire in February, 1829 when Jonathan Martin, a maniac, set it afire after devious preparations. Also, a workman repairing the clock in May, 1840 carelessly left a candle burning in the south tower and the resulting conflagration very nearly consumed the edifice.

Although abounding in decorative splendor, the chapter-house deserves special mention. It is the finest building of its kind in existence. Octagonal in shape, it is 60 ft. across and the roof - unsupported by pillars - rises to 62 ft. One of York Minster's treasures is an ancient chair in which several Saxon kings were crowned.

The legislature -- budget and taxes

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Illinois lawmakers have rejected Gov. Daniel Walker's call for budget cuts and have instead sent him authority to spend slightly more than he requested, preliminary figures show.

According to legislative committee staffs, the General Assembly concluded its spring session by adding $53.2 million to Walker's $5.4 billion request for general revenue fund spending in the new fiscal year — a 1 per cent increase.

Overall, the figures showed, the legislature approved $10.4 billion worth of appropriations. But within the governor's record $10.8 billion request were hundreds of millions of dollars for the proposed Accelerated Building Program, which was almost totally rejected by the legislature.

These figures do not count the $36 million in non-budget general fund appropriations approved by the General Assembly. In addition, lawmakers approved nearly $100 million worth of special-interest highway projects, the money for which comes out of the road fund and not from general revenue.

Although the General Assembly didn't make the cuts Walker asked for in mid-June, it did send him a mechanism allowing him to decide to hold back money if it looks like the state is going to run short.

A bill was approved which, if signed, would let the chief executive impose up to 8 per cent of the general revenue portion of each budget.

Under terms of the measure, the governor could release any impounded money if economic conditions permitted, providing a joint House-Senate committee approved the release.

The impoundment legislation, which was initiated by Democratic leaders in both houses, was seen as an effort to shift the responsibility for making tough budget cutting decisions to the governor.

But some legislators contended that Walker had put them in an unfair position by asking for across-the-board cuts with only two weeks remaining in the spring session.

Walker must decide over the next several weeks whether he will use his amendatory veto power to reduce the appropriations or just not spend it, even though he legally could.

In a news conference Tuesday, Walker said: "I can assure you that a 6 per cent cut is going to be made."

The legislature did cut many of Walker's budget requests for new employees for various state departments and agencies.

But the huge budgets for welfare and state aid for local schools remained virtually untouched, and the mammoth DOT appropriation was swollen with the special "pork barrel" projects designed to benefit certain areas.

The state's fiscal difficulties focus on the general revenue fund — which is the money collected from sales and income taxes and used for such state services as education, welfare and the general operation of state government.

In a televised speech to the General Assembly two weeks ago, Walker said the national recession had caused less money to be collected in sales and income taxes than expected.

"We have only two alternatives — cut government spending or increase taxes," the governor said. "There can only be one choice: we must cut spending."

From the day it was revealed in March, Walker's plan for record state spending in fiscal 1976 came under fire.

Bound by his often-repeated promise that taxes would not be raised, the governor presented the General Assembly with a budget so finely-tuned that it called for spending every penny in the general revenue fund.

Walker cited the national recession and the state's climbing unemployment rate as the "rainy day" for which the state should spend as much money as it had available.

The same reasons were advanced for Walker's proposed Accelerated Building Program, which called for pumping millions of dollars into the state's sagging building industry by speeding up the timetable on construction of roads, buildings and other capital projects.

The General Assembly rejected virtually all of the accelerated program, primarily because members said they objected to the long-term borrowing needed to finance the program.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The state's uncertain economy drastically altered the discussion of taxes in the 1975 Illinois General Assembly.

In the previous two years, although they could never get together on a concrete plan, state officials were generally agreed that Illinois could afford to lower some of its taxes.

That bright hope dimmed this year, and officials said taxpayers would be lucky to escape an increase in one of the state's major taxes on income, sales or gasoline by 1976 or 1977.

But despite this gloomy prediction, taxpayers did not fare badly during the recently concluded 1975 session, says Maurice Scott, head of the Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois.

"The session turned out much better than we expected it to be," Scott said in an interview. "There were no increases in the major state taxes, and there were a few reductions."

Although not technically a tax relief program, a measure passed early in the session and signed by Gov. Daniel Walker provides cash grants to senior citizens.

All-Star games Saturday

The Dixon Park District's Fifth Annual Girls All-Star softball games will be played on A.C. Bowers Field on Saturday with the Pony Tail contest to be played at 7:30 p.m. followed at 9 by the Philly League game.

A total of 88 girls will be participating in the eight inning games with each girl playing four innings. The Pony Tail All-Stars are divided into the North and South Division. On the North team will be members of the Hess and Sons Distributing Co., Owen's Sport Shop, Dixon Police, Sis's Inn and Wash N' Fill squads.

The South Division will be composed of Dalke's Plumbing, Dairy Queen, Snow-Wienman, Thomas Construction and Rising Suns team members. Girls in the Pony Tail League are in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades of school.

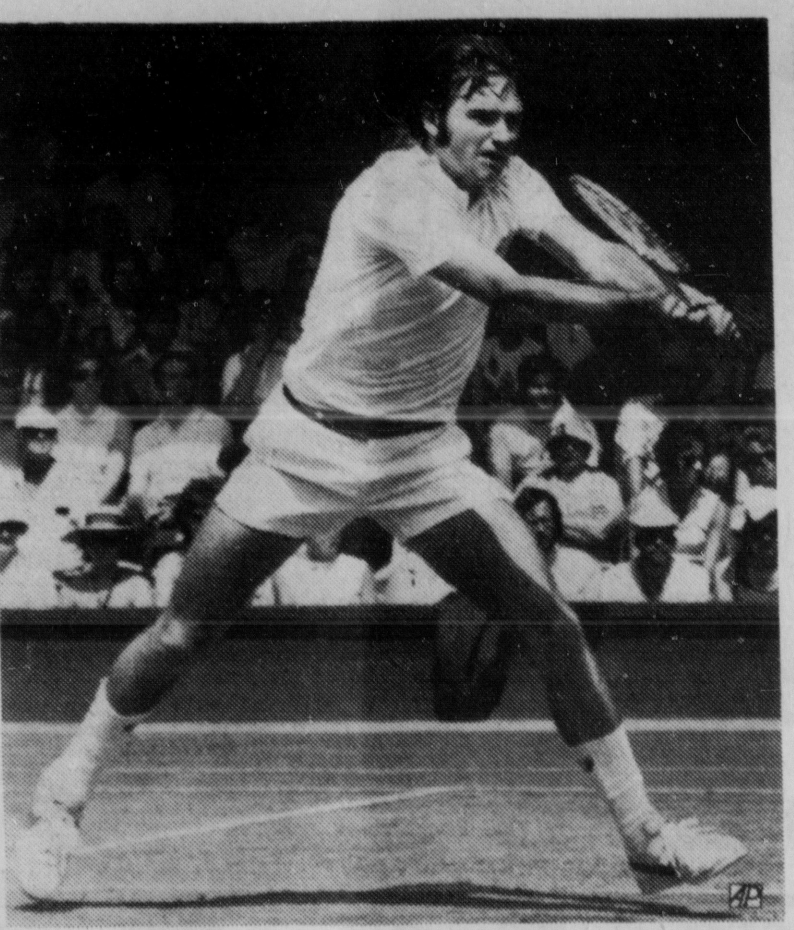

The high school girls who participate in the Philly League are also divided into two teams—the Dixon Division and the Dukes Division. Making up the Dixon Division are girls from Borg-Warner, Dixon National, Hal Roberts, Hummel's Trucking, Midas Mufflers, Wohrley's Heating & Cooling plus the Walter C. Knack Co.

In the Dukes Division are City National Bank, Dixon Motors, Parkway Drive-In, Strub's Decorating, Varga Body Shop, Donut World and Stroh's. Many of the girls playing in this game have been playing for five seasons in the Park District program.

The program, which began in 1970, has grown from 108 girls in the initial season to a record of 350 for the present campaign. There are 10 teams in the Pony Tail League and 14 on the Philly level.

Ted Trulock has been the director of the program since its inception in 1970. The teams are all sponsored by local merchants and organizations who donate uniforms and playing equipment.

Billie Jean King advances, Wimbledon mark in reach

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Billie Jean King, within one match of winning her sixth Wimbledon singles crown, could set an all-time women's title record at the All-England Tennis Club before the week is out.

Ms. King, 31, who vows that Friday's final with Evonne Goolagong Cawley is her last major international singles effort, has amassed 18 Wimbledon crowns in her 15-year career—five singles, nine doubles and four mixed doubles.

Victory in two of those three events this week would break the record of 19, all doubles, which belongs to Elizabeth Ryan, who played here in the 1920s and 1930s.

Ms. King moved into the final with a 2-6, 6-2, 6-3 triumph over defending champion Chris Evert on Wednesday. It was Miss Evert's first European loss since 1973, when she bowed to Ms. King in the final here.

Ms. Cawley earned a berth in the final by beating Margaret Court 6-4, 6-4 in a duel of former Wimbledon champions from Australia.

Ms. King, who constantly battles the pain of bad knees, called her come-from-behind victory over Miss Evert, 11 years her junior, "a real trip. I went to the edge of the ledge. I don't understand how I won."

"I'm kind of relieved," said Miss Evert after her loss. "There's been a lot of pressure on me this year, and I knew I'd have to play great to beat Billie Jean."

In the final set, Ms. King was trailing 0-3 and had three break points against her in the fourth game. The crowd on center court thought it was the last they would see of the competitor who first came here as a 16-year-old.

White Sox win on Downing single

CHICAGO (AP) — "Brian Downing's the best young catcher in the American League. I wouldn't trade him for anything," says Chicago Coach Chuck Tanner.

It was Downing's single with two out in the ninth inning that gave the White Sox a 5-4 triumph over Oakland Wednesday night.

But Downing was almost as pleased that he'd caught Oakland speedster Claudell Washington attempting to steal second base twice in the third and ninth innings.

"I knew with him running, I had to put everything I had behind it," said the 24-year-old catcher. Washington had stolen two bases on Downing in Tuesday's 10-1 victory for Oakland.

Then Downing came to bat. Jerry Hairston was on third base and Bucky Dent on first with loser Rollie Fingers, 5-4, on the mound. Downing stroked a ball over Washington's head in left field to score Hairston, who had two hits and scored two runs in the triumph.

"I just tried to relax," Downing said. "I've always been pretty good at hitting with men on base."

But Oakland Manager Alvin Dark wasn't impressed with the White Sox, his own team, and even the umpires. Dark protested the game in the seventh inning when winner Rich Gossage, 3-6, came into pitch. He claimed that Hairston was playing catch with a ballboy on the sidelines while Gossage was warming up.

Dark also questioned a ruling in the first inning that set up Chicago's first tally. Pat Kelly, who had singled, was given two bases when a fan grabbed a ball that had gotten past catcher Gene Tenace.

"It was the first time I've seen a guy being given a base when two players aren't hustling," Dark said. "So they give it to the offensive team."

Kelly scored on an infield out to make it 2-1 after the A's grabbed a quick lead off starter Claude Osteen. Oakland's Bill North singled in the first and went to third on Dent's two-base error on Washington's ground ball. North and Washington scored on Reggie Jackson's single to center field.

Oakland and Chicago exchanged runs in the fourth inning. The A's added another in the fifth inning on doubles by Washington and Joe Rudi.

But the White Sox chased starter Jim Perry in the bottom of the fifth inning as they scored two runs to tie the game at 4-4. Hairston doubled off the right field wall and Downing walked. Paul Lindblad came in to pitch and yielded a triple to Jorge Orta to score Hairston and Downing.

That's how it stood until the ninth inning when Hairston, Dent and Downing singled to end the ballgame.

On ninth inning home runs

Wise misses second no-hitter

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN AP Sports Writer

Rick Wise wasn't very smart Wednesday night and it cost him his second career no-hitter.

The 29-year-old right-hander of the Boston Red Sox had been extra-sharp ... until he faced Milwaukee's light-hitting Bill Sharp with two down in the ninth inning, one out away from becoming the second pitcher in modern baseball history to pitch a no-hitter in each league. But he walked Sharp on four pitches and George Scott and Bobby Darwin followed with home runs.

"It shouldn't have happened," Wise seethed after finishing with a two-hitter and a 6-3 victory in the first game of a two-night doubleheader as Jim Rice drove in four runs with a pair of homers. "I shouldn't have walked that guy."

Wise pitched a no-hitter for the Philadelphia Phillies against the Cincinnati Reds in 1971.

The Brewers bounced back to take the nightcap 4-3 and take undisputed possession of second place in the American League's East Division, one game behind the Red Sox.

Indians 3, Yankees 2

Duane Kuiper singled with two out in the ninth and raced home on Ed Crosby's single and a freak error on the relay. Crosby's single sent Kuiper to third and he came home when center fielder Bobby Bonds' throw hit Kuiper in the helmet and caromed away. Pitcher Dick Tidrow slipped trying to recover the ball, allowing Kuiper to score easily.

Orioles 13, Tigers 5

Baylor hit a three-run homer off Tom Walker in the first inning and solo shots off rookie Fernando Arroyo in the third and ex-teammate Bob Reynolds in the fourth. Since he also homered in his last official time at bat against Boston Tuesday night, it gave him a record-tying four consecutive home runs. Jim Northrup also homered for the Orioles.

Royals 7, Rangers 5

John Mayberry hit a two-run homer off Mike Kekich in the 10th inning, his fourth in two games. However, the loser was Gaylord Perry, who suffered his eighth consecutive setback and fourth in a row since being traded from Cleveland to Texas.

Twins 9, Angels 4

Bert Blyleven, sidelined for three weeks last month with a sore shoulder, notched his first victory since May 23 with eighth-inning help from Vic Albury. Dan Ford had a three-run double for Minnesota while Johnny Briggs and Rod Carew added two-run singles.

National League

"Oh, those bases on balls," Frankie Frisch coined the well-known baseball words many years ago — and Ron Reed had to eat them Wednesday night.

Reed issued an intentional walk to Greg Luzinski in order to pitch to slumping Dick Allen in the eighth inning. But the strategy backfired when Allen pumped a 1-0 Reed pitch into right field for a two-run triple, leading the Philadelphia Phillies to a 5-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

"Maybe the next time they won't be in such a hurry to walk the Bull," said Allen, his pride showing.

Allen's ego was obviously hurt by the maneuver. It used to be that pitchers would never think of walking someone else to pitch to him. But times have been tough lately for the Philadelphia first baseman.

"I'm swinging good, I'm just not hitting the ball," said Allen, who's batting a sub-par .233 and has only collected three home runs and 19 RBI since joining the Phillies in early May.

Larry Bowa triggered the Phillies' winning rally with a one-out single and stole second before Jay Johnstone fled out. Greg Luzinski was intentionally walked before Allen tripled into the right field corner.

Braves 6, Giants 0

Phil Niekro fired a four-hitter and Biff Pocoroba tripled and scored in the third inning and added a two-run single in the fourth to lead Atlanta past San Francisco. Niekro hurled his first shutout of the season to end the Giants' five-game winning streak.

Reds 4, Astros 3

George Foster blasted a mammoth three-run homer in the sixth inning to power Cincinnati over Houston. Foster's wallop, his 14th homer of the year, followed singles by Ken Griffey and Dan Driessen. The shot landed in the middle tier of seats in Riverfront Stadium's center field and was the longest home run of the season in Cincinnati, landing some 480 feet away.

Mets 7, Cubs 2

Felix Millan's two-run double snapped a 2-2 tie in the fifth inning and Jon Matlack scattered eight hits, leading New York past Chicago. Matlack walked with one out to start the Mets' winning rally and went to second on a single by Mike Phillips. Both scored on Millan's double off Bill Bonham.

Dodgers 6, Padres 5

Steve Garvey's bases-loaded single with two out in the 14th inning produced the winning run as Los Angeles beat San Diego. Paul Ray Powell opened the Dodger rally with a single and was sacrificed to second. Dave Lopes was walked intentionally and pinch-hitter Ken McMullen moved the runners into scoring position with a grounder.

Archers lose 12-8

ROCKFORD—The Dixon Archers jumped out to a 6-0 lead, here, Wednesday evening but Blackhawk scored 10 times in the seventh inning to cop a 12-8 decision in semi-pro baseball action. Dixon now travels to Belvidere for a doubleheader on Sunday.

Dan Willard went four-for-five and scored three runs for the Archers. Tom Butler added three hits including a double and triple, while driving in four runs. Gary Oswald doubled, tripled and scored twice.

An injury to regular first baseman Chuck Webster in the first inning and a questionable call which resulted in the ejection of another Archers player did not improve the Dixon chances for success.

Sport Notes

Uhe named

Roger Uhe will return as varsity basketball coach at Oregon High School this fall replacing Dick Reavis, head mentor for the Hawks the past two seasons. Uhe coached the Hawks to the Blackhawk Conference championship in 1971-72 and last season had charge of the Oregon frosh-soph squad.

Zecca resigns

Lou Zecca, Wyand football coach, has resigned his position as Eagle grid mentor to accept a post on the Hall High School coaching staff. Applications for the Wyand position are now being accepted.

Women-On-Wheels

ROCKFORD—Rockford Speedway has scheduled a full Late-Model and Road-Runner stock car racing program on July 12 along with the season's first running of the Women-On-Wheels (WOW). These ladies of the asphalt oval are the wives, daughters and girl friends of the regular stock car drivers who have the courage to pit their driving skills against others of the gentler sex and against the immovable Rockford Speedway walls.

Then on July 16, an evening of Road-Runner and Hy Skool racing is the program, along with another big Figure 8 event. Time trials begin at 6:30 p.m., with the first race getting underway at 8.

Mosher is fastest

Mike Mihm of Sycamore, posted an 18.77 second fast time at Sycamore Speedway last Saturday night to set a new late model fast time record. Mihm broke his hold record of 18.83, which he set in July 1974. Bill Hanson of Eburn also came in under the wire to beat the old fast time of 18.83, but not good enough to top Mihm's new track record of 18.77.

In the Super late model class, fast time went to Larry Mosher of Dixon, who turned in a 17.75. The two 25-lap feature events were taken by Ron Breeze of DeKalb in the late model class and Max Zimmerlein of Lake Holiday in the Super late model class. Both features were marred by accidents requiring restarts, in several instances. Although there was considerable damage to racing vehicles, there were no injuries.

ATTENTION DEALERS & COLLECTORS. Midwest's largest antique mail order dealer buying complete estates or antique collections for CASH. D. Shiaras's Question and Answer Period On Antiques has been read weekly by millions of readers around the world for over a decade. D. Shiaras, Route 3, Box 66, Grand Detour, Illinois 61021. Phone 652-4278.

QUESTION & ANSWER PERIOD. QUESTION—Mr. Shiaras, my husband and I have been kicking the following question around for months. What is the highest price that has ever been paid for a single piece of furniture at auction in the United States? My husband says $24,000. I say $32,000. Who is the warmest?

ANSWER—Dear Say: You are both only lukewarm. On May 22 of this year at a famous New York auction company a Chippendale bonnet-top highboy attributed to John Goddard of Newport sold for $102,000. This record lasted but two short weeks when at another famous auction company in Philadelphia on June 8 a Rhode Island block-front kneehole desk brought a block-busting price of $104,000. Ladies NEVER throw anything away!

Tyrone Power's daughter returns

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Tyrone's Power's daughter, Taryn, is back in Hollywood. Except for one brief month on a visit when she was 17 this is her first time back since she left when she was three.

"I didn't think I would like Hollywood," she says, "but I've found I like the people here and the city itself more than I expected to."

Taryn Power, as is only fair, is beautiful. Her father was a handsome hunk of man and her mother, Linda Christian, was no slouch in the beauty department, either. Now, at 21, Taryn is embarking on an acting career.

She has made one picture in South America and she was in TV's "The Count of Monte Cristo," with her ex-boy friend, Richard Chamberlain. But now she's costarring with Dennis Hopper in Henry Jaglom's film, "Tracks." And she's about to star in yet another remake of the "Sinbad the Sailor" saga.

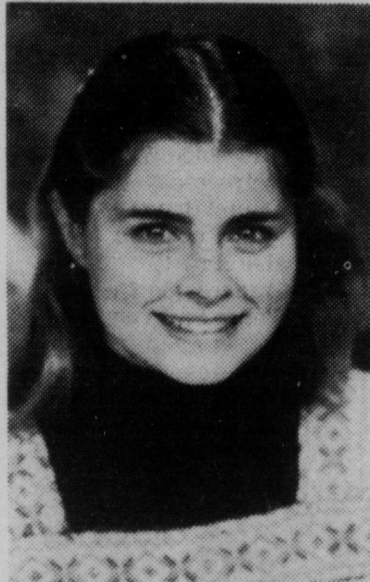

But she has a 1975 review of stardom and what she wants from her career.

"There's only one reason why I want to be a star," she says, "and that's so people will listen to me, as they listen to Shirley MacLain and Jane Fonda. I want to talk about some serious issues—I feel strongly about things like hunger and overpopulation and other things. I want to speak out about them and be listened to."

It's been a strange life for Taryn Power so far. Her parents were divorced when she was three. Her mother took her and her sister (Romina is two years older) to Europe to live.

But she never stayed in one place very long. She went to boarding schools in Mexico City and England. She lived in Spain and Rome. Rome, she says, was the closest thing to a hometown she knew and she stills feels comfortable speaking Italian.

"I guess English is my first language," she says, "but I still do my multiplication tables in TARYN POWER: wants to be a star so people will listen to her.

Italian."

She grew up thinking that one day she would become an actress but she knew she didn't want to work in Italian movies—at least the way they are now.

"Italian films," she says, "are just interested in the exploitation of sex and violence. So I did no movies there. Anyhow, for a long time I was madly in love (presumably with Chamberlain) and didn't want to do anything. But that ended so now I am in acting for good."

She says she has no

memories of her father. He died when she was five.

"I have absolutely no memories of him," she says, "other than the memories we all have from his films. I try to see his pictures whenever I can. I recently saw 'The Long Grey Line,' and I liked it a lot."

She is trying to reestablish contact with his family. She met one of his uncle's here, but then he died. She says she knows Ty Power had a sister in Florida. She has spoken to her on the phone, but she hasn't met her.

Now that she's discovered she likes Hollywood, she thinks she'll come back after she finishes "Sinbad the Sailor in Europe." Since she's been here, she's attracted a lot of attention, and some offers, made some tests.

"Something will develop," Taryn Powers says. "And I think I'll stay in Hollywood for a while when I come back."

Double Feature on NBC

Three men earn a living as modern-day boatmen on the Mississippi in "The Runaway Barge," and an undercover policeman joins in "Crossfire," on "NBC Double Feature Night at the Movies" Saturday, July 5 (7 to 10 p.m., repeat of March 24, 1975, in color).

In "The Runaway Barge," starting at 7 p.m., Danny Worth (Tim Matheson) and Ezel Owens (Bo Hopkins) are crewmen aboard the River King, owned by Capt. Buckshot Bates (Jim Davis). The adventure drama, filmed on location along the Mississippi River, details a kidnapping and hi-jack plot.

In "Crossfire," beginning at 8:30 p.m., James Farentino, as officer Vince Rossi, volunteers to pose as a dishonest cop in order to infiltrate the underworld. On the assignment, Rossi learns that a mob headed by Dave Ambrose (John Saxon) is using businessman Lane Fielding (Patrick O'Neal) to launder money being used to corrupt city officials. Ramon Bieri portrays Police Captain McCordle.

Movie Guide

9:30 "TIME OF THEIR LIVES" Abbott and Costello, Anne Gillis. Playwright purchases an old mansion haunted by two ghosts of revolutionary war patriots. Many anachronistic jests as the spir-its are frightened by household appliances during the mansion's restoration until playwright's fiance discovers just what the ghosts are after. 9

1:30 "ISLAND OF LOST SOULS" Bela Lugosi, Charles Laughton. Mad scientist experiments with techniques for changing wild animals into human beings. Based on H. G. Wells tale. Also, "DE-MARCATION LINE" Jean Seberg. People in small French border town try to get into Free France as parachutists come in to set up resistance webs. 44

2:30 "GORG0" Bill Travers, Vincent Winter. Undersea explosion off Ireland brings to the surface an unusual monster which is captured and brought to London circus. Scientists determine that the monster is an infant and there may be a two-hundred-foot parent around. Sure enough, pop shows up and tears down most of the city before being reunited with his offspring. 13

7:00 "THE RUNAWAY BARGE" Tim Matheson, Bob Hopkins. Modern-day adventurers get involved in a kidnapping and hijacking. Filmed on location on Mississippi. Also, "CROSSFIRE" James Farentino. Police officer volunteers to "steal" drugs and be caught in order to infiltrate an underworld mob. 6

"ABBOTT AND COSTELLO MEET THE MUMMY" Peter and Freddie are two Americans stranded in Egypt who are on the trail of a medallion which has information about a jewel-laden tomb, but three groups of fortune hunters converge on the ancient temple in a mad free-for-all to find the treasure. 9

8:00 "THE CARPETBAGGERS" George Peppard, Carol Lynley. The exciting world of big business and Hollywood in the "Golden 30's" as seen through the lives of the people who lived it. From the Harold Robbins best-seller. 8, 13

"ANNA KARENINA" Greta Garbo, Frederic March. Leo Tolstoy's somber tale of a beautiful young Russian countess who leaves her stuffy husband to elope with a handsome army officer. Although she fights her infatuation and is warned not to see him by her pompous husband, she eventually turns her back on the security of home and family to embark on an ill-fated love affair. 12

10:30 "LES GIRLS" Gene Kelly, Mitzi Gaynor. Three show girls travel through Europe with hit revue led by a man. Later, one publishes a book of memoirs; other sues for libel. Flashbacks used to show incidents of conflicting testimonies. 9

"RAPTURE" Dean Stockwell, Patricia Gozzi. Through the aid of a fugitive, a young girl discovers she is not mad, but rather neglected and lonely. She finds love and tragedy almost simultaneously. 23

11:30 "BOCCACCIO '70" Sophia Loren, Anita Ekberg. Three separate segments: The Raffle—meek man wins a girl in carnival raffle. The Temptation of Dr. Antonio—frantic obscenity crusader convinces authorities to cover sexy billboard. The Bet—Count's wife, whose husband is seeing $1,000-a-night call girls, tells him she will "work" for him in the same way. 8

1:00 "633 SQUADRON" Cliff Robertson, George Chakiris. During the Battle of Britain, 633 Squadron takes on the Luftwaffe in a daredevil mission that makes them a winged legend of World War II. 9

Viewers have power to stop TV violence

Some two years ago, after a young woman was doused with gasoline and set afire, in imitation of a television program aired two days previous, a horrified public recoiled. Citizens' complaints about TV violence prompted the House and Senate Appropriations Committees to lay down an ultimatum to the Federal Communications Commission: do something or face punitive funding cuts. The FCC met with the networks, and beginning this fall, as a result of the warning, two prime-time viewing hours nightly will be programmed for "family viewing." But, warns an article in the July issue of Reader's Digest, Nielsen survey shows that 10 million 12- to 17-year-olds are watching television at 10 p.m.; 7.7 million are at the tube by 11; and 3.8 million are still watching at midnight. What do you do about TV violence during those hours?

"The networks," writes Eugene Methvin, "have made plain to the FCC that they expect to continue their violent programming unchanged after 9 p.m." Thus it's up to viewers to contain the mayhem.

Sustained, well-aimed action on the part of concerned television viewers can be effective, and the article suggests a two-pronged approach: 1) Let the advertisers know how you feel about violent programming. Sponsors invest in television commercials to sell their products; if their mail tells them they're offending their market, violent programming will have little financial backing. 2) Let your local broadcasters and the FCC know how you feel. Local stations must renew their licenses with the FCC every three years, and the commission is required to listen to community organizations in deciding if a TV license merits renewal.

Organize your protest, Methvin advises. It is up to the community to insist on high standards of broadcasting; civic associations, professional societies, unions, churches and educational groups can have impressive impact on sponsor and station alike.

Teri Garr combines Humor and Beauty

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — To be funny and feminine at the same time is a trick that few ladies can master. You can name the ones who succeed at it without having to draw a second breath.

But here comes Teri Garr. She's blonde and beautiful and can be very funny. Naturally, everybody wants her but she's kept pretty busy these days.

She says she's not under contract to anyone, but they keep writing her into McCloud—she plays Sgt. Norton—and they keep writing her into Cher's show.

"I started on McCloud," she says, "with a few lines and the parts get bigger and bigger. With Cher, well, I was on sonny and Cher for three years, playing everything, and I keep getting invited back on Cher."

Like most comedienesses, Teri didn't start out to be a funny girl. She started out to be a dancer. Her real name is Terry Gonnoud (pronounced Gannow) but she followed the lead of her father, a song-and-dance man in vaudeville who used the name Eddie Garr in his act.

He died when she was 11 but she remembers how he tried to talk to her and her two brothers out of any show business ambitions. It worked with the brothers—one is a doctor, the other an engineer. But it didn't work with Teri.

My mother pushed me," she says. "I started dancing lessons when I was a kid and I was going to be the world's greatest ballerina."

TERI GARR: She didn't start out to be funny.

Two things combined to make her change her ambition. One was that, no matter how she tried, she kept getting laughs.

"Even when I was doing ballet," she says, "I got laughs. I'd be doing something serious, being lifted, and I would accidentally stick my hand in my partner's mouth. I don't really understand it but I'm grateful for it now."

The other thing was that she was given her first line to speak—and liked it. That was in "West Side Story." She was in the chorus, as one of the Jets. They gave her a line and she found that was a good feeling.

So she began studying. And, to support herself, she did a little of everything. She was even a roller-skating Statue of Liberty in a show at Disneyland for a long time.

Ask Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: Please tell me why Dinah Shore never shows her legs, why she never says anything about her parents, or children, or grandchildren.—FREDA JONES, Noblesville, Ind.

I'm not a regular viewer of Dinah's show. Her spokesman tells me she is more comfortable in pants because she sits down a lot. But, he adds, she has often worn dresses and shown that much of her legs. As for her family, she has often mentioned her mother's athletic ability, how her father talked her into going to college and, also, shown pictures of her one grandchild.

DEAR DICK: I'm having an argument with my husband about a star. A picture called "Bells Are Ringing," with the late Judy Holliday, was made in the '50s and there was an actress who played Judy's boss. My husband says that was Maureen Stapleton. I don't think so.—VEE WOODWARD, El Cajon, Calif.

Your husband is suffering from a common disease, Stapletonitis. The symptoms are mixing up actresses named Stapleton. It was Jean, not Maureen, who played Judy's aunt who ran the telephone service in "Bells Are Ringing."

DEAR DICK: Whatever happened to the picture, "Mame," with Lucy in it? Never see it advertised anywhere and never read anything about why it has never shown locally.—E. V. DOUCETTE, Plaistow, N.H.

Whatever happened to "Mame" was what it deserved. It came and went pretty quickly in most cities, because it wasn't very good. Chances are it never was shown in your area, or, if it was, it came and went overnight.

DEAR DICK: My friend says John Wayne is dead. I say he is still alive. Tell me who is right.—JO ANN McLAIN, Robertsdale, Ala.

DEAR DICK: Is it true that Chastity Bono was killed in an airplane crash last year? My friend says she was and I say she wasn't.—CINDY BURKETT, Brewton, Ala.

Where do you Alabama girls get your ghoulish friends? In both cases, pooh on the friends—they're wrong. Duke Wayne and Chastity Bono are still alive and well.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me if Nicole Travis is on The Edge of Night is coming back on the show and, if not, why she left?—A READER, Osceola, Ark.

That's what Maeve McGuire, the actress who played the part of Nicole Travis, would like to know, too. The script had Nicole fall off a yacht and she hasn't been heard from since. Miss McGuire has found a new job, however. She'll be in next fall's new show, Beacon Hill.

DEAR DICK: Some friends and I would like to find out what kind of car Columbo drives on that show, and what year it is.—P. B., Menominee, Mich.

That little beauty is a '57 Peugeot, Model 403.

Networks to draft television stars

NEW YORK (AP) — It hasn't been publicized much, but owners of the new National Ratings League are meeting this week to draft promising young players for television, trade TV stars and maybe fool around a bit.

NRL commissioner Everett Scrimshaw says the league recently was formed by the networks to end costly bidding wars for college actors and help stars who won't work in their series unless they're paid more.

"But the main idea is to foster competition," says Scrimshaw, hired as league commissioner because of his work at the nationally-reknowned Capt. Silly's Home for the Strange.

"We're currently seeking an anti-trust exemption from Congress like baseball has, and pretty soon we'll start negotiations with the public for off-camera rights to the players," he said.

"Of course, we might have trouble with 'The Invisible Man' because you won't really know if the star's there when you sell him. Maybe we can include a bucket of Da-Glo in the deal or something."

He said the new league will operate under A.C. Nielsen ratings rules, but it won't have eastern and western divisions. Instead, it'll have family hour and mature divisions.

When the league's first season starts next September, programs in the family hour division will compete for the right to appear in the Nice Bowl playoffs next May, he explained.

Shows in the mature division will battle for the Salacious Bowl playoffs, also in May.

The winning show from each division then will meet in the Rerun Bowl in July in a no-holds-barred test of good versus evil. The champion will be renewed for another season and the loser cancelled.

"There'll be enormous interest," Scrimshaw predicted, although he said it isn't known yet if the Rerun Bowl will be televised. "We're making a survey to find if the audience will be at home in July.

"But that's a long way down the road. Right now, we're concentrating on the TV draft, and believe me, there are a lot of exciting young prospects, like UCLA's Snideley Foon.

"He's got good moves, great prejudices and is the No. 1 draft pick for 'All in the Family.' Another top candidate is Nelson Beamish from the Wharton School of Finance.

"He can compound interest on the Six Million Dollar Man."

Speaking of money, how can the National Ratings League help a TV star who won't return to his series without a big salary hike?

"Well, we're certain we can resolve the dispute amicably with the help of our new expert on contracts, Big Louie," the commissioner said. "Big Louie likes to see a TV star go back to work.

"If that doesn't happen, Big Louie says he likes to construct a four-story building on the bridge of the star's nose. But I'm sure he's only kidding. Aren't you, Big Louie?"

"Yeah," the contracts expert said. "I really build five stories."

Building Supplies Unlimited opens

A new retail business, "Building Supplies Unlimited," has been established in what was formerly the Klein and Heckman Plumbing and Heating building at 1037 W. Third St.

A portion of the building has now been opened, featuring the full Smith-Alsop paint line, including all varieties of interior and exterior house paint, painting accessories, wall covering materials, plus tools and equipment used in painting and finishing.

Smith-Alsop is not a new line to the Dixon area. Many of the Dixon area people are already familiar with the product and its high quality.

Additional building product lines are to be added at Building Supplies Unlimited. Dick Utz and Jack Vaile, the owners, will be making further announcements concerning these lines soon, but Smith-Alsop paints are available now at this new location.

The store is open daily, Monday through Saturday, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Convention business remains at good level

By LEE MITGANG
AP Business Writer

Professional and trade conventions, a $3-billion-a-year business for the nation's hotels, restaurants, retailers and meeting halls, have gotten a lift in many cities from the recession. But officials fear an eventual downturn if economic problems persist.

Coss completes truck course

Dean Coss, of Harrison Chevrolet Cadillac, Dixon, recently completed a specialized motor truck application training program, Dean Harrison announced today.

Developed to specific factory requirements, the course encompassed the industry's most advanced procedures for matching trucks to job demands.

In recognition of his proficiency, Coss was granted a Certificate of Completion by Truck Marketing Institute of Carpinteria, Calif., an accredited member school of the National Home-Study Council.

Having had six years of experience in sales, Dean Coss is the truck specialist at Harrison's.

An Associated Press spot check of major convention cities and interviews with convention trade officials shows that attendance and spending at business gatherings has kept pace with recent years, or gone higher.

A survey of 500 trade and professional associations just conducted by the American Society of Association Executives—ASAE—showed 45 per cent had improved convention attendance over last year, 37 per cent had little change, and 18 per cent were lower.

Trade figures also show that inflation in most convention cities has not caused delegates to watch their pennies, nor has it led to "no-frills" conventions.

Delegate spending in most cities surveyed has risen 10 to 15 per cent in the past year. In Washington, D.C., for example, a delegate now will spend $233 for an average 4.4-day convention stay, $264 in Las Vegas, $275 in Atlanta, Ga., and $313 in New York.

Charles Gillett, president of the New York Convention and Visitors Bureau, says New York City hosted 825 conventions in 1974, a figure he expects to equal this year, and up slightly from 820 in 1973.

Changes in leadership of Borg-Warner Corp.

Robert O. Bass, former executive vice president of Borg-Warner Corporation and president of its transportation equipment group, has been elected president, succeeding James F. Bere, who becomes chairman of the board and continues as chief executive officer.

Bass, 57, who also has been named chief operating officer, had been executive vice president since 1968 and president of the group since April 1974. Bere, 52, who has been chief executive since 1972, was elected president in 1968.

The previous chairman had been Robert S. Ingersoll, who, in 1972, joined the U.S. State Department as ambassador to Japan and is now deputy secretary of state.

Borg-Warner's five major business areas include air conditioning equipment, chemicals and plastics, financial services, industrial products and transportation equipment.

Borg-Warner's Marvel-Schlebler-Tillotson division operates a plant in Dixon.

Former Dixonite moves up in Marmon Group

CHICAGO—L. William Emmert, formerly of Dixon, has been elected vice president and director of personnel for the Marmon Group, it was announced today by Robert A. Pritzker, president.

In this newly created position, Emmert is one of only five vice presidents, Pritzker said. He further commented that Marmon's sales have grown from $51 million to $333 million during the past 10 years and a major reason for this gain is the outstanding performance of those executives recruited and selected by Emmert.

As vice president and director of personnel Emmert will continue to have responsibility for executive recruiting and consultation with Marmon member companies on personnel matters, as well as managing the corporate personnel function.

Before joining Marmon, Emmert held a variety of personnel positions at R. R. Donnelley & Sons, a printing firm in Chicago; and was dean of students and associate professor of psychology at Eureka College.

He is on the board and past chairman of the Elders of the First Christian Church of Chicago Heights.

Motor club honors Baumann

A Dixon automobile dealer has received a Chicago Motor Club-AAA Distinguished Service Plaque for the donation of cars to behind-the-wheel high school driver education programs in the Amboy and Sterling Districts.

Neill F. Madsen, left, manager of the Motor Club's Dixon branch office, made the presentation to Chuck Baumann of Chuck Baumann Volkswagen, Inc.

The Chicago Motor Club was a pioneer in the high school driver education program. In the late 1930s, the club started a program aimed at teaching every high school student in the club's Illinois and Indiana territory the proper way to drive, but the program was slowed down because of World War II.

In 1946, the club launched a program to obtain autos from local dealers to aid the schools in their behind-the-wheel phase of the driver education program.

Today, 85 per cent of the cars used for the driver education program are loaned to the schools by the local dealers. Thousands of students have been taught this safer way to drive.

Producer takes 4 years to write novel of life in 17th century Japan

By BOB THOMAS

Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Why would James Clavell, wartime captive in an infamous Japanese prison camp, devote four years of his life to writing a massive novel of life in 17th century Japan?

The question is all the more puzzling when you consider that Clavell is the writer-producer-director of such films as "To Sir with Love" and "The Lost Valley."

Why would he abandon the glamor of filmmaking for the lonely and perhaps unrewarding life of writing about his onetime captors?

"I just admire the Japanese," explains the rugged Clavell.

"It is possible to end up admiring an enemy. The relationship of conqueror and conquered can be an intriguing one; it doesn't necessarily lead to hate."

His 800-page "Shogun" has just been published by Atheneum with a first printing of 50,000 and Literary Guild selection.

Reviews have been glowing, and there is talk of a film version. Clavell's previous books, "King Rat" and "Tai-pan" were both bought for movies.

He was imprisoned in the notorious Changi camp where he had his first encounter with the Japanese.

"During my growing-up years between 18 and 21 I was kicked around plenty," he said.

"It was a violent and yet sublime training in the art of survival, which is what I write about in my books. It also gave me an introduction to the Japanese mentality."

"An officer offered to give me a gun so that I could kill myself to atone for the shame of having been defeated. He believed that he was doing me a favor, as one officer to another."

Clavell wrote about his wartime experiences in the 1962 "King Rat," which became a movie starring George Segal.

The author admitted that he resolved to throw a brick through the window of the Japanese embassy in London after the war, but his bitterness eased — "everything is painted black-and-white in your youth."

He became acquainted with Japanese during his travels to California, Hawaii and British Columbia as a film writer — he is now an American citizen. His knowledge of the Orient grew with research for his second novel, "Tai-pan," an epic of Hong Kong history.

Clavell began work on "Shogun" after filming "The Lost Valley" with Michael Caine and Omar Sharif.

"Films give me the money to buy the time to write books," he explained.

20 years in show business

BeeGees still changing

By STEPHEN FORD

NEW YORK — (NEA) —

Their music is heard in the most varied of mediums, from suburban discotheque to the dance floor at the Waldorf. It is blasted at you from FM rock stations and lulls you in the dentist's waiting room, strained through a syrupy network of strings and brass. There are few bands these days whose appeal cuts across so many diverse musical tastes but then, there are few bands like the BeeGees.

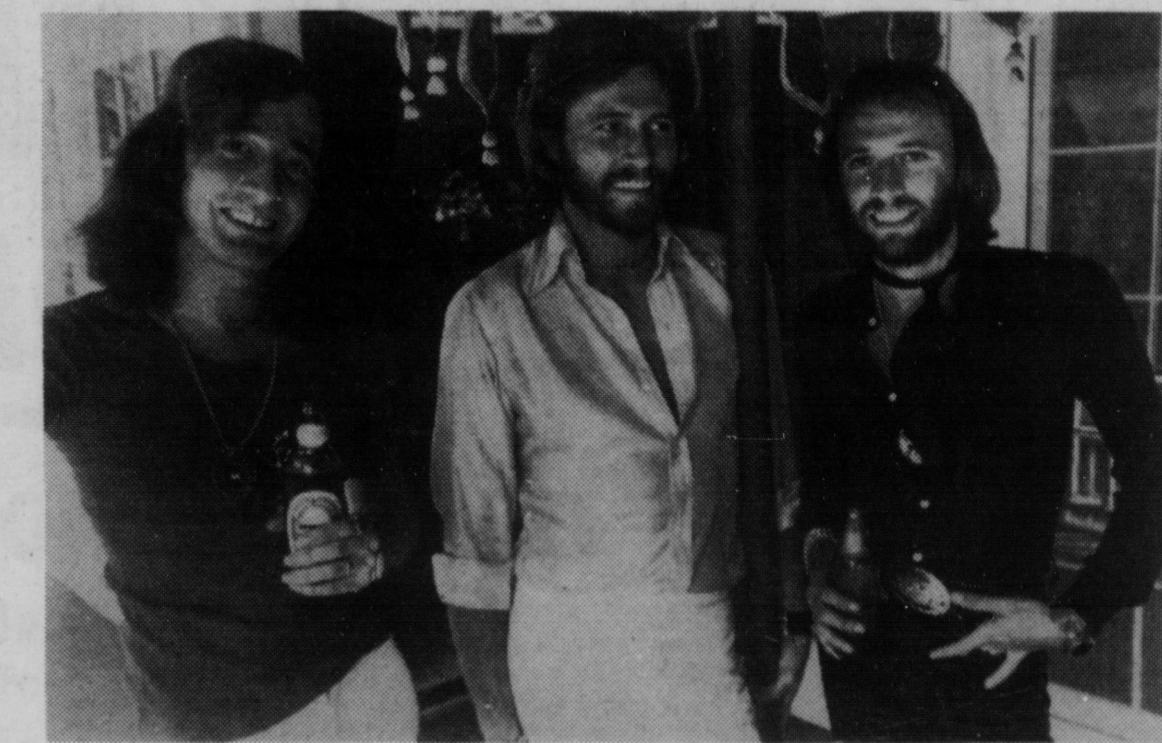

This year, the Brothers Gibb celebrate their 20th anniversary in the business. In 1955, Maurice, Robin and Barry took the stage for the first time to sing before a cinema audience in Manchester, England, their birthplace. Since then, their career has yielded their own television show, 15 albums and appearances on stages not only throughout Britain but all over the world.

"Touring is probably the most satisfying aspect of this business," explains 28-year-old Barry from behind the reddish-brown forest of his beard. "It's where we can see our fans' reaction right there as we're performing which, of course, we can't do when in the recording studio."

"We're all fond of touring," adds Robin, the lead vocalist whose eerie, multi-octave voice has lifted more than one of their songs from the mediocre to the sublime. "But it is a drag living out of a suitcase for three months and moving from hotel to hotel."

Brother Maurice chimes in, "A lot of fans think touring in a band is really exciting—seeing the world with someone to cater to your every fancy, exotic food and waking up whenever you please. I wish that's all it were. You can't just record and never see your fans, you've got to present a physical image, something they come and see or you're containing yourself as an artist."

Especially striking are the brothers' remarkable dispositions. Robin, thin almost to the point of frailty, appears aloof much of the time, a direct contrast to Maurice, his ebullient fraternal twin. Maurice, whose forehead melts into a thinning hairline, is the entertainer, his face twisting every-which-way in some impromptu impression. Barry, three years older than his siblings, is the diplomat with charm to spare. All three are married though Maurice is in the midst of a divorce.

Despite the rich imagery of their lyrics which has led some to believe the BeeGees are a "drug band", a little pot now and then seems to be the extent of their vices. Also along those lines, one need not be a prude to find it refreshing to talk with a band able to communicate without relying on an assortment of vulgarisms.

Currently touring the United States and Canada with an exhaustive 35-concert itinerary before them, the BeeGees will mostly perform material from their latest album "Main Course" on the Atlantic label.

It is an album unlike any other they've recorded. Sounding more like a Motown group than the creators of such classics as "First of May" or "I Started A Joke", the BeeGees newest LP is as an amalgam of energetic pop as suitable for disco airplays as for listening in the sanctum of your living room.

"It's our favorite album so far," says Barry. "And you can expect a lot more like it from us. We're experimenting with new sounds and directions and we like the rhythm and blues style."

"This is our first tour of the States without an orchestra accompanying us," Maurice adds. "It may surprise a lot of fans."

"And win new ones," interjects Robin. "We're pleased to notice that our audiences are not just the over 18 crowd who grew up with us but a lot of younger fans who get into us as much as they do Elton John."

But the three hold a very dismal view of pop music today, particularly pop in the British Isles. "Bloody dreadful," says Maurice. "No imagination, mainly gimmicks and glitter."

"Not that we're against glitter," explains Barry. "Some artists need glitter just to be noticed and then prove themselves capable performers. David Bowie is an example. But most of the Top 40 stuff in England is rubbish."

On a more cerebral level, if any group is qualified to produce a concept album, that is, an album with a single theme, they are. Yet they never have. "We like to think each of our songs is a concept piece in itself," states Robin.

"Our philosophy is embodied in our music," says Barry. "We don't advertise our opinions but let the music speak for itself. We tried a political song for Main Course called 'Dear Dr. Kissinger' but it was dropped. It was too forced, sounded like we were trying too hard to be political. That's worse than saying nothing."

After 20 years in show biz, how much longer can the BeeGees continue without their popularity waning as the years wax? "Well," answers Maurice with just the slightest grin, "Look at the Mills Brothers."

For Sun Lovers

The worst time for you to be out in the sun is from 12 noon till 1 p.m.

If you aren't a sun lover and must be in the sun for several hours such as going to ball games, automobile races, swimming, picnics, etc., use Elizabeth Arden's sun shielding cream under your moisturizer and then your makeup and your face will be triple protected from the sun.

Use tan promoting cream under moisturizer then makeup. Tan promoting cream gives a golden tan, Sun Gelee gives a darker tan, but don't use if you are going to wear a white bathing suit because it will stain. Deep Tanning Oil disappears into the skin, doesn't stay sticky.

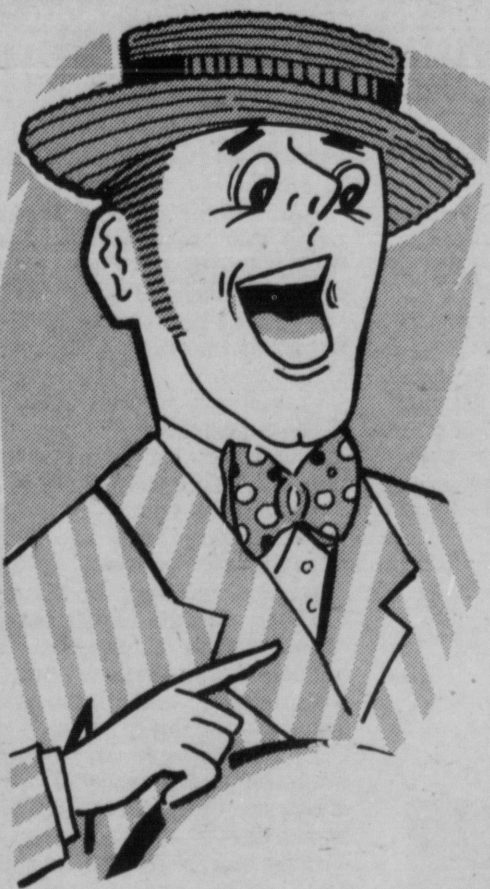

After Sun Cooling Cream can be used for face enrichment for after sun treatment helps rebalance moisture loss, relaxes dry taut skin, removes flakiness, no more leathery texture.

Want to wear a makeup when swimming? Use Coty's Great Coverage, no moisturizer needed under this makeup when you swim. It is not made for oily skin.

A face to take to the beach, bronzed and positively glowing, the good looks are what you see, what you don't see is the built-in sun screen in makeup.

For non-tanners Coty's All In One makeup gives a glowing outdoor look. Don't let the beauties at the beach discourage you non-tanners, you can look as good as they do simply by using this makeup, can be used all over your body and will give you a great tan. This makeup moisturizes, contains hydrolyzed protein and sun screen to condition and protect your skin, it will give you a fresh outdoor look.
